Even Federal Control
Would Produce Difficulties Says Chairman

Washington, Aug. 26.—Congress today was called upon to declare a national emergency "equal to a state of war" as a result of the mine strike and impending coal famine in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Dickinson, Republican of Iowa.

The bill would provide for federal control of the mining industry through a "mine labor board" of four members. The board would be authorized to settle the present strike, adjust wages, fix coal prices and regulate the entire coal industry.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Heralding a return of wartime "heatless days" and "lightless nights," a resolution was introduced in the house today by Rep. Brennan, Republican of Michigan, authorizing the administration to impose radical restrictions on the use of coal.

The resolution was intended to meet the impending coal famine through the restoration of fuel curtailment orders issued during the war.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Congress was still seeking a solution today of the knotty problem of how anthracite coal can be produced and moved in sufficient quantities to prevent widespread suffering this winter—with governmental seizure looming in the background as a measure of last resort.

A serious hard coal shortage was regarded by many senators as inevitable even if the anthracite strike is settled soon, or in case President Harding decides it is necessary for the government to take over the anthracite mines.

Chairman Cummins, of the senate interstate commerce committee, declared that the remedial legislation thus far proposed does not and will not produce coal as long as the anthracite miners do not and will not return to work.

As his committee began consideration of his bill to extend power of the interstate commerce committee to issue priority orders for coal distribution, Cummins was known to entertain the opinion that the measure "will not be helpful in producing hard coal, unless the anthracite miners agree to produce it."

"I still have a lingering hope," Cummins said, "that the anthracite operators will come to an agreement with their employees, but I think that if it is believed that the president by taking over the mines can secure men who will produce coal in the anthracite fields, then we ought to give him the power to do it."

"But it is still to be doubted whether the president would be any more successful in hiring men to enter the coal mines, than the operators have been, because when we give to the president the power to take over the coal mines and he goes to employ miners, he will either have to agree to their terms or he may not be able to secure the men. It must not be forgotten that the anthracite mines are shut down tight because the men who were employed in them are almost all union men and refused to work."

"Whether the president's influence, whether the sentiment of the country would make him any more powerful than the operators I do not know," Cummins pointed out that in Pennsylvania, where most of the anthracite mines are, the state law provides that only licensed miners may work in the mines, and that, substantially all of the licensed miners are union men and therefore, on strike.

"Would the president be bound by such a law?" Cummins was asked. "I venture no opinion upon that question," he replied. "The truth is that there are a good many constitutional difficulties which appear trivial to some and very formidable to others about the government taking the coal mines, aside from the serious problem of its operating them once it takes them over."

"If we meet the situation however, as we should meet it, to prevent the hardships threatening the people there must be concurrence and co-operation between the government and the states."

Although anticipating some opposition in committee to his bill, Cummins hoped to report it favorably and to secure prompt action on it by the senate.

MURDER CUT SHORT COLLINS' ROMANCE

Michael Collins and Miss Kittie Kiernan

While he was "on the run" for six years as Commander-in-Chief of the Irish Army, with a huge price on his head, Michael Collins wooed and won the beautiful Miss Kittie Kiernan, of Granard, County Longford, who was irresistibly attracted by the dashing young soldier. The romance was not disclosed, until, in a personal and scathing attack upon Collins in Daily Eireann, Countess Markiewicz declared that, for having signed the peace treaty with England, Collins ought to marry Princess Mary.

In a beautiful answer Collins declared the Countess was bringing pain to his fiancée—and the secret was out. The marriage was to have taken place as soon as Collins had brought peace to "this most distressful land." But the wedding will never take place, for Collins is dead at the hands of assassins and Miss Kiernan is left to mourn.

Motion Picture Actor Shot
by Director in Dramatic Duel

John Bergen: Handsome Screen Hero, Killed by George Cline, in Fight Over Woman, That Rivals Cinema Thriller

New York, August 26.—John Bergen, a handsome moving picture actor lies dead today, the victim of a tragedy with all the thrills and sensation of a film drama. He was reported to have refused to participate in a duel with the husband of a woman he was rumored to have wronged.

As he lay dying Bergen drew from his pocket a slip of paper on which were the scrawled words: "George Cline killed me."

Cline was arrested and today was a prisoner in the Hacksack, N. J. jail charged with murder.

Cline insisted that he shot in self defense when Bergen attacked him. Bergen, it seems, had been summoned unexpectedly to the Cline home where he was suddenly confronted by the husband.

Cline insists that he shot in self defense when Bergen attacked him. Bergen, it seems, had been summoned unexpectedly to the Cline home where he was suddenly confronted by the husband.

The tragedy took place in the Cline's cottage home—a pretty vine clad place—in Edgewater, N. J., just across Hudson river from Grant's tomb on Riverside drive.

Cline, who had been directing motion pictures for the William Fox Company at Fort Lee, in the presence of his wife and her two brothers, accused Bergen of wrecking his home.

Cline following the shooting told the police he had sent for Bergen after exacting from his wife details of an incident which, he declared she confessed took place at Saranac Lake, N. Y., recently. At the time Cline said, his wife and Bergen were at the lake taking part in a film production.

When he accused Bergen at last night's dramatic meeting, Cline said the film actor brazenly admitted the incident and calmly demanded: "Well what about it?"

Bergen also added contemptuous remarks disparaging to Mrs. Cline, the husband added.

There upon Cline reported: "Well so long as you feel that way about it let us settle this matter like two men."

Crossing the floor of the dining room Cline drew from the drawer of a closet two dueling pistols.

"There is a big empty room up stairs; we will go up there and fight it out," suggested Cline. "No one will bother us. It is the chivalrous thing to do."

The wife stood by her hands clasped on her breast, her face ashen gray with fear. Her brothers made no move. Upstairs the Cline children aged 7 and 5, lay asleep.

The two men started up the stairs, bent on their grim business, each with a pistol in his hand. Bergen went first, followed by Cline. According to the story told to the police by Cline, the actor suddenly halted on the stairway, turned and pointed his weapon at Cline. Cline said he leaped forward and attempted to wrest the pistol from Bergen's hand.

The pistol fell to the stairway, then according to Cline, the actor drew a blackjack from his pocket and lunged a blow at his head. It was then, Cline said, that he raised his pistol and fired one shot. The bullet struck the actor on the left side of chest just over the heart and he crumpled up the body sliding down the stairway passed Cline leaving a trail of blood in its wake.

The bleeding body was brought up with a bump at the bottom of the stairs just in front of Mrs. Cline and her brothers. Bergen was breathing with long gasping breaths but was conscious. With a painful effort he staggered to his feet and made for the door. He lurched from the porch and disappeared in the darkness.

A half hour later the dying actor was found lying on the river road near the edgewater ferry station, nearly half a mile from the spot where he had been shot.

A taxicab chauffeur saw the body lying in the roadway in a pool of blood. Bergen was still conscious. With his dying breath he asked for a piece of paper and pencil and with his last strength he scrawled the accusation against Cline. He drew man came up.

Bergen died before a doctor arrived. He was conscious and game to the last.

Cline told the police he had met Bergen at Salt Lake City, Utah, and befriended him and helped him to make his way upward in the moving picture profession. He said that Bergen had given his wife when at Saranac to weaken her moral resistance.

Cline was a former member of the Pennsylvania constabulary. It is understood that his defense will be the "unwritten law."

MULCAHY IN CHARGE

Crowds Pass Bier of Collins at Dublin—City
Mourns

Dublin, Aug. 26.—One free state soldier was killed and many others were wounded in an ambush attack near Nenagh today. The irregulars exploded a mine. The free state troops gave battle to the rebels and a violent conflict followed.

Dublin, Aug. 26.—Richard Mulcahy, successor to Michael Collins, as commander in chief of the Irish free state army, massed troops all round Dublin today to cope with demonstrations in connection with Collins funeral and prevent any attack upon the city by irregulars.

All the roads leading in and out of Dublin were, under military patrol. Severe fighting was reported from Sligo with the free staters victorious.

News was received from the south and west that the followers of De Valera were cutting telephone and telegraph wires and were burning whole editions of newspapers to prevent news of Collins death from reaching the people in the interior.

Since the body of Michael Collins was brought to Dublin the rebels have been less active in the city.

The cabinet has been considering the policy of sterner action towards the irregulars, but an attitude of greater leniency has been adopted towards the women in the rebel ranks.

One woman who was captured while in the act of posting an anti-free state propaganda sheet was quickly released. Another woman who was firing upon pedestrians with a rifle was captured close by.

The woman sniper was released also.

Fighting continues in most of the western and south western counties. Numerous ambushes—now the favorite form of rebel attack—were reported.

Two men were killed and two others wounded in the accidental explosion of a bomb in the free state garrison at Ballymullen.

General McKeon, a blacksmith of Bellinagalee, is reported to have taken command of some of the free staters. He was one of the closest friends that the late Michael Collins had and is reported to be burning to avenge "Mick's" death.

He sent word that if De Valera is in County Louth he (McKeon) is anxious to meet him.

Large crowds continue to file past the bier of Collins in the city hall. The whole city is in mourning. Flags are at half mast and public demonstrations of grief are common.

STORMS CAUSE HEAVY
DAMAGE IN SWEEP
THROUGH OHIO TOWNS

Athens County and Newark Struck by Heavy Rain and Wind

Athens, O., Aug. 26.—Damage estimated to exceed $300,000 was the toll exacted from Athens County by the most severe rain and wind storm of many years yesterday afternoon.

The greatest loss was reported from Amesville, where three cloudbursts in rapid succession filled all the business houses and many residences with water to a depth of from one to six feet within an hour.

It is reported that several miles of the track and bridges of the federal valley railroad were completely washed away by the flood and that the damage in this instance would amount to more than $100,000.

A rural mail carrier was rescued from a tree top Saturday morning after he had spent more than 12 hours there. His horse and cart were swept from a road over a steep embankment by a wall of water and he saved himself by grasping the trees as he was swept to it.

Almost all bridges and all the crops in the lowlands in the eastern portion of the county, were carried away by the overflowing waters of Federal creek. In Amesville, store stocks were floated away and families forced to seek refuge in the second stories of their homes.

A great wind that accompanied the storm levelled trees and hay stacks were blown away.

Newark, O., Aug. 26.—A heavy storm struck this city late yesterday afternoon, and for an hour the heavy downpour of rain caused the cellars in the business district to flood, the sewers being inadequate to carry off the water and as a consequence the streets resembled miniature rivers.

A high wind in the northern section of the city blew down small buildings and stripped trees of their branches and in some instances uprooted them. Telephone, telegraph and electric light lines were out and the town was in darkness all night.

VETERANS WILL BE INSANE UNLESS
RELIEF IS SECURED

Columbus, Aug. 26.—"Those men will be insane for the rest of their lives, unless something is done for their relief," declared Dr. E. E. Smith, Columbus, following a personal investigation of conditions surrounding disabled veterans of the world war who are confined at the state hospital here.

Dr. Smith, who is a member of Franklin county post, American Legion asserted that the ex-service men cannot receive proper care at the hospital. Attacking Brigadier General Sawyer, Dr. Smith declared that the presidents personal physician is the greatest obstacle in the path of the American Legion in the fight for hospitalization for disabled veterans. Arthur S. Burkett, head of the Franklin county post, declared that members of the post will wage a fight for the removal of Brigadier General Sawyer.

RACE TO BRING

Controversy on Dyestuff
Rates and Lumber on Free List.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Tariff harmonizers of the house, and senate began a race against time today to complete a "harmony" tariff bill before congress adjourns for the November elections.

Unless the measure is completed in conference in two weeks, it was said there will be no tariff bill laid before the people before election. Administration leaders planned to hold the two branches of congress in session, passing upon the bonus and President Harding's coal measures, until the conference finished their work and then rush the tariff through to final enactment.

Two thousand changes in rates remain to be worked out. At rates are being considered on the foreign valuation plan although a decision on adoption of this plan has been postponed until all other matters are settled.

Two other fights also loomed. These included the Bursum rates on chemicals and dye stuffs, which amounted in effect to an embargo, and the listing of various lumber items on the free list. In both instances, house conferees were opposed to the action taken by the senate. Fearing a prolonged argument, however, both subjects were postponed for a later decision.

Showing the same attitude as during the original hearings on the bill, the conferees refused to discuss any decisions made thus far on final rates. The chemical schedule, it was reported, was approved in the senate's form with the exception of the Bursum "embargo," although conferees refused to confirm it.

Senator McCumber of North Dakota, ranking republican conferee, said today he expected the conference to end within two weeks. House members, however, were not so optimistic and indicated they did not think the bill would be completed within a month.

HARDING MAY SEEK POWER TO TAKE OVER RAILROADS
AS PEACE EFFORTS FAIL

Bill Providing Power of Government Seizure is Prepared and Ready for Introduction on Moment's Notice
—President Falls Back on Original Plan

Washington, Aug. 26.—Confronted at every turn with the failure of efforts to peacefully settle the railroad strike, President Harding today took back on his original plan for dealing with the national menace. It is this:

The railroads will be given every opportunity to demonstrate their ability to maintain efficient service without the unionized shopmen, and if they fail then the president will ask congress for specific authority to take over those roads unable to fulfill their obligations to the public.

Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, the father of the railway labor board, had a bill in his pocket today granting this power. It will be introduced in the senate and house whenever it becomes apparent that the government must abandon its pacific attitude and haul out the dusty "big stick" to protect the public the suffering of transportation and coal famines.

In substance and form the Cummins bill has been approved by President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty. It will be kept on file in Senator Cummins' hip pocket for emergency use, and the belief prevailed today it would be many weeks yet before the need of it becomes apparent.

The abrupt discontinuance of negotiations in New York is expected to aggravate the strike situation as it affects other unions. Ten days ago the country was filled with sporadic, individual strikes by members of the brotherhoods and affiliated unions, and transportation was in a decidedly chaotic state.

When the brotherhood chiefs began acting as mediators between the executives and the striking shop-crafts, leaders, they persuaded their disgruntled members to return to work, overlooking disagreeable conditions, in order not to embarrass the negotiations.

With negotiations now ended and conditions of equipment no better than they were, it was freely predicted in labor quarters today that there will be a recurrence of the individual and sporadic strikes by all classes of railroad labor throughout the country.

FATE OF WORLD IN HANDS OF AMERICA
SAYS JAMES M. COX

London, Aug. 26.—The storm center of the whole economic world is central Europe, said James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for president in the United States in 1920, in a statement issued here today. Mr. Cox was the honor guest at one of the famous breakfasts given by Premier Lloyd George at his official residence at 10 Downing Street.

"The fate of the world is in the hands of America," continued the statement. "The days wasted in procrastination at the present time will bring years of self reproach later on."

Mr. Cox urged that the United States take the lead in untangling the European snarl which is getting more serious every day. He suggested that Herbert Hoover be appointed special commissioner to suggest remedies for the critical state of European affairs.

Mr. Cox's statement continued as follows: "The nations of Europe are deadlocked on the reparations question. The master key is held by the United States."

Mr. Cox said from his personal observations neither France nor Germany is militaristic or has any militarist ambitions. Germany has added a faced with absolute starvation. While in Berlin Mr. Cox met Chancellor Wirth, the

Even Federal Control Would Produce Difficulties Says Chairman

Washington, Aug. 26.—Congress today was called upon to declare a national emergency "equal to a state of war" as a result of the mine strike and impending coal famine in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Dickinson, Republican of Iowa.

The bill would provide for federal control of the mining industry through a "mine labor board" of four members. The board would be authorized to settle the present strike, adjust wages, fix coal prices and regulate the entire coal industry.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Heralding a return of wartime "hellish days" and "lightless nights," a resolution was introduced in the house today by Rep. Brennan, Republican of Michigan, authorizing the administration to impose radical restrictions on the use of coal.

The resolution was intended to meet the impending coal famine through the restoration of fuel curtailment orders issued during the war.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Congress was still seeking a solution today of the knotty problem of how anthracite coal can be produced and moved in sufficient quantities to prevent widespread suffering this winter, with governmental seizure looming in the background as a measure of last resort.

A serious hard coal shortage was regarded by many senators as inevitable even if the anthracite strike is settled soon, or in case President Harding decides it is necessary for the government to take over the anthracite mines.

Chairman Cummins, of the senate interstate commerce committee, declared that the remedial legislation thus far proposed does not and will not produce coal as long as the anthracite miners do not and will not return to work.

As his committee began consideration of his bill to extend power of the interstate commerce committee to issue priority orders for coal distribution, Cummins was known to entertain the opinion that the measure "will not be helpful in producing hard coal, unless the anthracite miners agree to produce it."

"I still have a lingering hope," Cummins said, "that the anthracite operators will come to an agreement with their employees, but I think that if it is believed that the president by taking over the mines can secure men who will produce coal in the anthracite fields, then we ought to give him the power to do it."

"But it is still to be doubted whether the president would be any more successful in hiring men to enter the coal mines, than the operators have been, because when we give to the president the power to take over the coal mines and he goes to employ miners, he will either have to agree to their terms or he may not be able to secure the men. It must not be forgotten that the anthracite mines are shut down tight because the men who were employed in them are almost all union men and refused to work."

"Whether the president's influence, whether the sentiment of the country would make him any more powerful than the operators I do not know," Cummins pointed out that in Pennsylvania, where most of the anthracite mines are, the state law provides that only licensed miners may work in the mines, and that, substantially all of the licensed miners are union men and therefore, on strike.

"Would the president be bound by such a law?" Cummins was asked. "I venture no opinion upon that question," he replied. "The truth is that there are a good many constitutional difficulties which appear trivial to some and very formidable to others about the government taking the coal mines, aside from the serious problem of its operating them once it takes them over."

"If we meet the situation however, as we should meet it, to prevent the hardships threatening the people there must be concurrence and co-operation between the government and the states."

Although anticipating some opposition in committee to his bill, Cummins hoped to report it favorably and to secure prompt action on it by the senate.

MURDER CUT SHORT COLLINS' ROMANCE

Michael Collins and Miss Kittie Kiernan

While he was "on the run" for six years as Commander-in-Chief of the Irish Army, with a huge price on his head, Michael Collins wooed and won the beautiful Miss Kittie Kiernan, of Granard, County Longford, who was irresistibly attracted by the dashing young soldier. The romance was not disclosed, until, in a personal and scathing attack upon Collins in Daily Eirann, Countess Markiewicz declared that, for having signed the peace treaty with England Collins ought to marry Princess Mary. In a beautiful answer Collins declared the Countess was bringing pain to his fiancée—and the secret was out. The marriage was to have taken place as soon as Collins had brought peace to "this most distressful land." But the wedding will never take place, for Collins is dead at the hands of assassins and Miss Kiernan is left to mourn.

Motion Picture Actor Shot by Director in Dramatic Duel

John Bergen: Handsome Screen Hero, Killed by George Cline, in Fight Over Woman, That Rivals Cinema Thriller

New York, August 26.—John Bergen, a handsome moving picture actor lies dead today, the victim of a tragedy with all the thrills and sensation of a film drama. He was reported to have refused to participate in a duel with the husband of a woman he was rumored to have wronged.

As he lay dying Bergen drew from his pocket a slip of paper on which were the scrawled words: "George Cline killed me."

Cline was arrested and today was a prisoner in the Hackensack, N. J. jail charged with murder.

Cline insists that he shot in self defense when Bergen attacked him. Bergen, it seems, had been summoned unexpectedly to the Cline home where he was suddenly confronted by the husband.

of an incident which, he declared she confessed took place at Saranac Lake, N. Y., recently. At the time Cline said, his wife and Bergen were at the lake taking part in a film production.

When he accused Bergen at last night's dramatic meeting, Cline said the film actor brazenly admitted the incident and calmly demanded: "Well what about it?"

Bergen also added contemptuous remarks disparaging to Mrs. Cline, the husband added.

There upon Cline reported: "Well so long as you feel that way about it let us settle this matter like two men."

Crossing the floor of the dining room Cline drew from the drawer of a closet two dueling pistols.

"There is a big empty room up stairs; we will go up there and fight it out," suggested Cline. "No one will bother us. It is the chivalrous thing to do."

The wife stood by her hands clasped on her breast, her face ashen gray with fear. Her brothers made no move. Upstairs the Cline children aged 7 and 5, lay asleep.

The two men started up the stairs, bent on their grim business, each with a pistol in his hand. Bergen went first, followed by Cline. According to the story told to the police by Cline, the actor suddenly halted on the stairway, turned and pointed his weapon at Cline. Cline said he leaped forward and attempted to wrest the pistol from Bergen's hand.

The pistol fell to the stairway, then according to Cline, the actor drew a blackjack from his pocket and lunged a blow at his head. It was then, Cline said, that he raised his pistol and fired one shot. The bullet struck the actor on the left side of chest just over the heart and he crumpled up the body sliding down the stairway passed Cline leaving a trail of blood in its wake.

The bleeding body was brought up with a bump at the bottom of the stairs just in front of Mrs. Cline and her brothers. Bergen was breathing with long gasping breaths but was conscious. With a painful effort he staggered to his feet and made for the door. He lurched from the porch and disappeared in the darkness.

A half hour later the dying actor was found lying on the river road near the edgewater ferry station, nearly half a mile from the spot where he had been shot.

A taxicab chauffeur saw the body lying in the roadway in a pool of blood. Bergen was still conscious. With his dying breath he asked for a piece of paper and pencil and with his last strength he scrawled the accusation against Cline. He drew this from his pocket when a policeman came up.

Bergen died before a doctor arrived. He was conscious and came to the last.

Cline told the police he had met Bergen at Salt Lake City, Utah, and befriended him and helped him to make his way upward in the moving picture profession. He said that Bergen had given his wife wine at Saranac to weaken her moral resistance.

Cline was a former member of the Pennsylvania constabulary. It is understood that his defense will be the "unwritten law."

REBELS AMBUSH FREE STATERS AS IRISH MOURN

Troops Massed to Prevent Outbreak at Funeral of Collins

MULCAHY IN CHARGE

Crowds Pass Bier of Collins at Dublin—City Mourns

Dublin, Aug. 26.—One free state soldier was killed and many others were wounded in an ambush attack near Nenagh today. The irregulars exploded a mine. The free state troops gave battle to the rebels and a violent conflict followed.

Dublin, Aug. 26.—Richard Mulcahy, successor to Michael Collins, as commander in chief of the Irish free state army, massed troops all round Dublin today to cope with demonstrations in connection with Collins funeral and prevent any attack upon the city by irregulars.

All the roads leading in and out of Dublin were under military patrol. Severe fighting was reported from Sligo with the free staters victorious.

News was received from the south and west that the followers of De Valera were cutting telephone and telegraph wires and were burning whole editions of newspapers to prevent news of Collins death from reaching the people in the interior.

Since the body of Michael Collins was brought to Dublin the rebels have been less active in the city. The cabinet has been considering the policy of sterner action towards the irregulars, but an attitude of greater leniency has been adopted towards the women in the rebel ranks.

One woman who was captured while in the act of posting an anti-free state propaganda sheet was quickly released. Another woman, who was firing upon pedestrians with a rifle was captured close by.

The woman sniper was released also. Fighting continues in most of the western and south western counties. Numerous ambushes—now the favorite form of rebel attack—were reported.

Two men were killed and two others wounded in the accidental explosion of a bomb in the free state garrison at Ballymullen.

General McKeon, a blacksmith of Ballinacree, is reported to have taken command of some of the free staters. He was one of the closest friends that the late Michael Collins had and is reported to be burning to avenge "Mick's" death.

He sent word that if De Valera is in County Louth he (McKeon) is anxious to meet him.

Large crowds continued to file past the bier of Collins in the city hall. The whole city is in mourning. Flags are at half mast and public demonstrations of grief are common.

STORMS CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE IN SWEEP THROUGH OHIO TOWNS

Athens County and Newark Struck by Heavy Rain and Wind

Athens, O., Aug. 26.—Damage estimated to exceed $300,000 was the toll exacted from Athens County by the most severe rain and wind storm of many years yesterday afternoon.

The greatest loss was reported from Amesville, where three cloudbursts in rapid succession filled all the business houses and many residences with water to a depth of from one to six feet within an hour.

It is reported that several miles of the track and bridges of the federal valley railroad were completely washed away by the flood and that the damage in this instance would amount to more than $100,000.

A rural mail carrier was rescued from a tree top Saturday morning after he had spent more than 12 hours there. His horse and cart were swept from a road over a steep embankment by a wall of water and he saved himself by grasping the trees as he was swept to it.

Almost all bridges and all the crops in the lowlands in the eastern portion of the county, were carried away by the overflowing waters of Federal creek. In Amesville, stores stocks were floated away and families forced to seek refuge in the second stories of their homes.

A great wind that accompanied the storm levelled trees and hay stacks were blown away.

Newark, O., Aug. 26.—A heavy storm struck this city late yesterday afternoon and for an hour the heavy downpour of rain caused the cellars in the business district to flood, the sewers being inadequate to carry off the water and as a consequence the streets resembled miniature rivers.

A high wind in the northern section of the city blew down small buildings and stripped trees of their branches and in some instances uprooted them. Telephone, telegraph and electric light lines were out and the town was in darkness all night.

VETERANS WILL BE INSANE UNLESS RELIEF IS SECURED

Columbus, Aug. 26.—"Those men will be insane for the rest of their lives, unless something is done for their relief," declared Dr. E. E. Smith, Columbus, following a personal investigation of conditions surrounding disabled veterans of the world war who are confined at the state hospital here.

Dr. Smith, who is a member of Franklin county post, American Legion asserted that the ex-service men cannot receive proper care at the hospital. Attacking Brigadier General Sawyer, Dr. Smith declared that the presidents personal physician is "the greatest obstacle in the path of the American Legion in the fight for hospitalization for disabled veterans."

Arthur S. Burkett, head of the Franklin county post declared that members of the post will wage a fight for the removal of Brigadier General Sawyer.

HARMONIZERS RACE TO BRING TARIFF BILL UP

Must Be Completed in Two Weeks To Be Ready Before Election

MUCH TO BE DONE

Controversy on Dyestuff Rates and Lumber on Free List

Washington, Aug. 26.—Tariff harmonizers of the house, and senate began a race against time today to complete a "harmony" tariff bill before congress adjourns for the November elections.

Unless the measure is completed in conference in two weeks, it was said there will be no tariff bill laid before the people before election. Administration leaders planned to hold the two branches of congress in session, passing upon the bonus and President Harding's coal measures, until the conference finished their work and then rush the tariff through to final enactment.

Two thousand changes in rates remain to be worked out. All rates are being considered on the foreign valuation plan although a decision on adoption of this plan has been postponed until all other matters are settled.

Two other fights also loomed. These included the Bursum rates on chemicals and dye stuffs, which amounted in effect to an embargo, and the listing of various lumber items on the free list. In both instances, house conferees were opposed to the action taken by the senate. Fearing a prolonged argument, however, both subjects were postponed for a later decision. Showing the same attitude as during the original hearings on the bill, the conferees refused to discuss any decisions made thus far on final rates. The chemical schedule, it was reported, was approved in the senate's form with the exception of the Bursum "embargo," although conferees refused to confirm it.

Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, ranking republican conferee, said today he expected the conference to end within two weeks. House members, however, were not so optimistic and indicated they did not think the bill would be completed within a month.

CHARGES MATERIAL MEN ARE OPPOSING LIMITING CLAUSES

Secretary of Home Protective League Flays Road Interests

Columbus, Aug. 26.—Road material interests are opposing the proposed tax and debt limiting amendments to the state constitution, to be voted on during the November elections because of selfish motives, declared C. A. Dyer, secretary of the Ohio Home Protective League.

The road material men object to a debt limit in the constitution because it may interfere with the sale of road material and materially decrease the number of "road holdings" in Ohio, said Dyer.

Secretary Dyer declared that the road material men's opposition to the proposed tax amendment developed, because "it wipes out the laws under which the high cost roads of the state are being built and leaves it to the people to decide how much they will spend outside the limitations for highways."

The uniform tax league, which is said to be opposing the proposed amendments, is maintaining offices in the office of the Ohio macadam association according to Dyer.

A. P. Sandles, Ottawa, a secretary of both organizations, it was stated.

MINES IN OPERATION

Punkstown, Pa., Aug. 26.—P. M. Clark, president of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal and Iron Company, issued a statement saying that 90 per cent of the company's mines, 25 in number, are in full operation today.

HARDING MAY SEEK POWER TO TAKE OVER RAILROADS AS PEACE EFFORTS FAIL

Bill Providing Power of Government Seizure is Prepared and Ready for Introduction on Moment's Notice

President Falls Back on Original Plan

Washington, Aug. 26.—Confronted at every turn with the failure of efforts to peacefully settle the railroad strike, President Harding today fell back on his original plan for dealing with the national menace. It is this:

The railroads will be given every opportunity to demonstrate their ability to maintain efficient service without the unionized shophmen, and if they fail then the president will ask congress for specific authority to take over those roads unable to fulfill their obligations to the public.

Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, the father of the railway labor board, had a bill in his pocket today granting this power. It will be introduced in the senate and house whenever it becomes apparent that the government must abandon its pacific attitude and haul out the dusty "big stick" to protect the public the suffering of transportation and coal famines.

In substances and form the Cummins bill has been approved by President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty. It will be kept on file in Senator Cummins' hip pocket for emergency use, and the belief prevailed today it would be many weeks yet before the need of it becomes apparent.

For the present at least, the administration is planning no new peace moves in the railroad controversy. It was stated officially at the White House today. The situation so far as the government is concerned, is back where it was some weeks ago when the administrations attempt at peaceful adjustment failed—first by rejection on the part of the railroads, and second by rejection on the part of the unions.

"Apparently both sides want to fight it out," said one official today. "If they can do it without running the country into ruin perhaps it would be a good thing to let them try it."

The abrupt discontinuance of negotiations in New York is expected to aggravate the strike situation as it attracts other unions. Ten days ago the country was filled with sporadic, individual strikes by members of the brotherhoods and affiliated unions, and transportation was in a decidedly chaotic state.

When the brotherhood chiefs began acting as mediators between the executives and the striking shopcraft leaders, they persuaded their disgruntled members to return to work, overlooking disagreeable conditions, in order not to embarrass the negotiations.

With negotiations now ended and conditions of equipment no better than they were, it was freely predicted in labor quarters today that there will be a recurrence of the individual and sporadic strikes by all classes of railroad labor throughout the country.

Woman Who Offered $100 a Month for Man Is Sued For Alienation

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 26.—The "sensational love trade" in which Mrs. Nellie Kendrick charged that Edith Huntington Spreckels, wakerfield, wealthy San Francisco society woman attempted to purchase the love of her husband for $100 a month reached the stage of court proceedings today.

Papers were completed today by Senator Frank M. Carr, attorney for Mrs. Kendrick, in two suits—the first seeking to divorce Rodney Kendrick, her artist husband, and the second asking $300,000 damages from Mrs. Wakerfield for alleged alienation of the senator's affections.

Senator Carr announced both suits would be filed during the day. It was learned that sensational allegations are made by the wife, in the two suits.

She bases her claim for divorce on alleged infidelity and names Mrs. Wakerfield as the correspondent. It is understood two specific instances will be claimed by the wife as grounds for her charge of infidelity against her husband. The dates set forth in the suit, according to Senator Carr are July 4 and 15. Both of these dates are included in the period that both Kendrick and his wife were house guests of Mrs. Wakerfield at her summer home in Sausalito.

In her suit charging alienation of affections of her husband against Mrs. Wakerfield, it is understood that stress will be laid upon a camping trip taken by Kendrick and Mrs. Wakerfield and the charge will be made they were unaccompanied. This charge has been denied by Mrs. Wakerfield who claimed that Mrs. Rodney Kendrick, Sr., was a member of the party.

The alienation suit, it is alleged, will charge that Mrs. Wakerfield became infatuated with Kendrick several months ago and induced him to leave his position in Oakland and take up his residence in Sausalito. Three months after they met, the wife charged, it is understood, her husband lost interest in her.

The famous "love trade" pact in which the wife admittedly agreed at one time to accept $100 a month and divorce Kendrick will figure prominently in the alienation of affection suit.

The nations of Europe are deadlocked on the reparations question. The master key is held by the United States.

Mr. Cox said from his personal observations neither France nor Germany is militaristic or has any militarist ambitions. Germany he added is faced with absolute starvation. While in Berlin Mr. Cox met Chancellor Wirth, the latter saying: "Unless the United States interests herself in European affairs within a short time Germany, I might say all of Central Europe—will be lost."

The American statesman is not unduly pessimistic. "It is not too late to prevent disaster if our government will take the initiative," said he. "I believe that without any inconstancy the government could designate Herbert Hoover to serve in solving the reparations problem. He has the confidence of Europe, and can analyze the economic situation with understanding."

Two Injured in Similar Accidents

Claud Miller, Walnut Street, is suffering from a painful injury which he received Thursday at the Hooven and Allison mill when he attempted to clean a spinner without turning off the power.

His left hand and arm caught in the machinery breaking the arm in two places and also breaking four fingers. He was taken to the Welfare house where medical attention was given and later was taken to his home.

Friday Clarence Penwell, employed at the same mill, received injuries of almost the same kind as Mr. Miller's when he caught his left hand in the machinery breaking bones in the wrist and hand.

BOULDER WRECKS TRAIN IN WEST

Seattle, Washington, 26.—Engineer E. S. Jones an unidentified man, stealing a ride, were instantly killed and fireman M. A. Arnold probably fatally injured when west bound Northern Pacific train number 1, the North Coast Limited, was derailed by a huge boulder at Wymer, 21 miles west of Yakima, early today.

The locomotive rolled over while five coaches containing about eighty passengers were derailed without serious injury to any of the occupants.

The North Coast Limited was due here at 8:30 a. m. today. The accident occurred on a sharp curve in the Yakima canyon, where the road parallels the Yakima river.

FIRE WIPES OUT PART OF TAMPICO, MEXICO

Tampico, Mex., August 26.—Fire wiped out a large section of Tampico today doing damage estimated at about $2,500,000. Twenty six buildings were destroyed.

Three persons were killed and many were injured.

An entire block of business buildings were among the structures consumed.

GREENE COUNTY FARM BUREAU HAS HAD SUCCESSFUL GROWTH DURING REGIME OF FORD S. PRINCE AS AGENT IN LOCALITY

Citizens of Xenia City and of Greene County as a whole need no introduction to Ford S. Prince, agent of the Greene County Farm Bureau, the activities of which have been the subject of the reading material of this page for the past several months.

Prince is the pleasant, faced fellow you see often striding down the street wearing a slouch hat, or riding a nondescript filly that covers the miles over the county to the benefit of that county.

Despite his acquaintance over the county near and far and recognition of his ability and progress in his work, County Agent Prince is at heart a retiring individual and is too engrossed in his work to stop and give many details of his career as agent for one of the most active and prominent organizations in the state.—or shall we say in the United States?

County Agent Prince began his acquaintance with Xenia citizens and farmers of the county when he took over the work of the Greene County Farm Bureau, in May, 1913. He came to this city from New Hampshire College at Durham, New Hampshire, where he taught experimental work. Before that time Prince was instructor at Michigan State College, where he taught in the soils department, his work at the New Hampshire College including the teaching of crops and farm management.

The foundation of Prince's knowledge of farm life, and problems based on the farm on which he was born and reared in Shelby County, Ohio. His interest in farm work and its proper management was satisfied with the instruction he received in the agricultural department at the University of Illinois, graduating from that school in 1913 after a three years course in that department, later entering Miami University at Oxford for further study, attending that school for two years.

County Agent Prince's experience as agent for the Greene County Farm Bureau has been his first experience of this kind. His position with the local organization was filled before his entrance by James Cook, who filled the capacity during the years 1913 and 1914.

The period after Mr. Cook's leaving the county was without a Farm Bureau agent, the organization being kept alive during that time by the farmers of the county, who sought means to raise funds to employ a wide-awake county agent.

Mr. Cook's work as county agent, during his regime here, was handled through his connection with individuals more than as an organization, as handled by County Agent Prince, who has worked up a Farm Bureau organization in the county second to none in the country due according to his statement, to the cooperation on the part of the farmers of the county.

The promotion of Farm Bureau accomplishments led by Mr. Prince who as agent crystallized the efforts of the farmers, having included the establishment of a number of county wide organizations, which has resulted in the cooperation of the farmers of the county and to the saving of many dollars for the county agricultural man.

The organizations for the forming of these organizations, according to Mr. Prince, is due solely to the farmers, the local leaders, and the special committees selected throughout the county to carry on the work to a finish.

The organizations include that of the Greene County Live Stock Shipping Association, this organization completing since its establishment one-half million dollars worth of business since the first of April, 1921, a period of 17 months. This amount meant the saving of thousands of dollars to Greene County, and is an example of the stupendous work accomplished by the members of the Association.

The Greene County branch of the Miami Valley Co-operative Milk Producers' Association, established in November, 1921, is among the outstanding accomplishments of the Greene County Farm Bureau during the past two years. The dairy organization boasts a membership of 600, secured since its organization, and now have in operation five farmers' cream stations situated at different points in Greene County. The establishment of the cream stations has boosted the price of butter fat in Greene County about five cents on the pound, gleaming about $30,000 to the farmers of the county a year. The larger amount of the credit for the establishment of this worth-while organization, is laid at the door of the farmers of the county and the State Farm Bureau Federation.

"Without the Farm Bureau organization, the organizations of both these companies, the Live Stock Shipping Association and the dairy organization, would have been impossible," said County Agent Prince, "because there would have been no head organization through which to work, and to carry on the research and investigation work, handled by the State Farm Bureau Federation, and would have been doubly fruitless because of the lack of funds."

Third among the list of active companies organized during the reign of Prince in farm circles, has been the organization of two farmers' elevators, the Osborn Farmers'

Grain Company, and the Spring Valley Farmers' Exchange. The Greene County Farm Bureau during that time has assisted in the organization of the Cedarville Farmers' Grain Company and the Xenia Farmers' Exchange.

The accomplishments of the past include the organization of the Sheep and Wool Growers' Association.

FORD S. PRINCE

tion in Greene County, through which the sheep and wool of the county is marketed, through shipping to the Central Ohio Sheep and Wool Growers' Association at Columbus. The Farmers of Greene County have marketed 30,000 to 40,000 pounds annually of the past four years through the organization.

The foregoing organizations include the marketing establishments in connection with the Farm Bureau, this bureau now assisting in the establishment of a number of breed organizations, including the Big Type Poland China Association, the Spotted Poland China Association, the Shorthorn association, and the Duroc Jersey Association and is now in the process of organizing a Jersey Cattle club in the county.

"One of the best pieces of work in the four years' work of the Greene County Farm Bureau has been the organization of the Boys' and Girls' Clubs, during the past year," is the opinion of Mr. Prince. The work of this branch of activity included the carrying on of the Pig, Food, Clothing, Poultry and Stock Judging Work, and out of 209 boys and girls enrolled in the clubs 156 exhibited at the Greene County Fair.

Credit for this work goes to the local leaders of the clubs who have had charge of the individual clubs. The women of the county have also started the Home Economics part of the Farm Improvement work, and put in a county wide dress form and the clothing construction campaign, the women of a few of the townships have been active in putting hot school lunches in the rural schools of the county.

The men's work during the past year has included the launching of a better sires campaign, with three hundred and twenty five farmers of the county enrolled. These farmers are using nothing but pure bred sires in all kinds of live stock on their places, placing Greene County first in the state and second in the United States in the campaign.

Other projects include the advancement of better seed wheat, about one fourth of the acreage of the county being sowed in either Trumbull or Gladden varieties, poultry and feeding campaign during the past three years, the poultry culling demonstrations instructing the farmers of the county how to weed out their unprofitable hens and the feeding campaigns teaching them how to secure the most eggs at the least possible cost.

In addition, fertilizer and lime demonstrations on the soils over the county have been conducted, and through the farm account work another project, especially the Cost Accounting Ring, leading to better farm management and accounts on the farms over the county.

The eradication of the barberry plants in the county to do away with the black stem rust, that caused concern on the part of the farmers, has played a prominent part in the work during Mr. Prince's term as County Agent, who worked with the farmers of the county, with the cooperation of the United States Agricultural Department in the eradication of the plant. The work was started in this part of the state in 1918, when the black stem rust became so troublesome that it led to active warfare against the barberry practically all of the plants in the county being destroyed during the past year.

TO BUILD 45 LOCOMOTIVES
Lima, Aug. 26.—The Lima locomotive works has been commissioned to build forty-five engines for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad. It was announced by W. L. Reid, president. All are for heavy freight service. This brings the total orders for engines since January to more than 200.

SHOW DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SCRUB AND PURE BRED HOGS

"What is all this bunk we see in the newspapers, as the hog breeding season approaches, regarding pure bred hogs being better than any other kind?" says the farmer who has always grown scrub swine as he reads the pure bred advertisement in the newspaper, and the average farmer does raise such questions, because only 4 per cent on the American farms are pure bred.

The farmers' misgivings are answered by Mr. E. E. McCall, of Xenia, Ohio, who explains the difference between pure bred hogs and scrubs by citing two particular instances as follows: 1st, An Arkansas razorback sow, owned by the Arkansas Experiment Station, which weighed 85 pounds at two years old. She farrowed nine pigs by a scrub boar and raised five of them. At 228 days old, the pigs averaged 172 pounds, which indicates a gain of .75 pounds per day. 2nd, A Pig Club Poland China gilt owned by Ted Kryder, of McClure, Ohio, which, at one year old, farrowed nine pigs by a pure boar, saved all of them, and which, at 145 days old, averaged 214 pounds, thus showing a gain of 1.47 pounds. At 228 days old, (same age of scrubs), the pure bred pigs would have averaged 335 pounds.

Mr. McCall says the pigs cited may be extreme scrubs, but it more forcibly illustrates the "hard feeding" tendency of scrubs, while the incident of pure breeds cited is no exceptional in Big Type herds.

The scrub hogs may be graded up," says Mr. McCall, "but even the grade hog will not produce the number of pounds of meat per 100 pounds of feed as will a pure bred." To substantiate his claim, he cites an experiment carried out by 14 farmers of Ray County, Missouri, under direction of the County Farm Bureau and the Livestock Association, and the State University. The result showed feeds required to produce 100 pounds of grain, as follows:

Corn and shorts, grade hogs, 402.4 lbs., pure bred hogs 333.0 lbs.
Tankage, grade hogs 16.1 lbs., pure bred hogs 10.4 lbs.
Pasture, grade hogs 133.4 days, pure bred hogs 128.0 days.
Farmers cannot afford to feed scrubs, nor go through the "grading up" process when pure bred hogs can be obtained at prices in keeping with other farm products.

GREENE COUNTY IS SENDING EXHIBITS TO 1922 STATE FAIR

The regular routine of farm work over the county will be dispensed with next week, when farmers over the state will be in attendance at the largest of rural annual events, the Ohio State Fair at Columbus.

Activities at the Greene County Farm Bureau offices, will be slackened all meetings during the week being postponed in order to allow the farmers of the countryside to attend the fair.

Greene County, has usual, will take a prominent part in the exhibits at the State Fair, and will doubtless carry off many honors during the week.

Four carloads of livestock left Xenia Friday for Columbus the shipments being made by the Greene County farmers for exhibits at the Fair. Among the shippers were Gowdy Williamson, who shipped Merino sheep; J. C. Williamson and son, Oxford; James Bickett, Lincoln sheep; J. H. Hawkins, Rambouillet and Shropshire sheep; Ernest Hutchison, Angus cattle; and R. D. Grieve, Poland China hogs.

This list is only partial many other making shipments during the week.

FEAR SEED CORN MAY BE LACKING

If Ohio has a cold, early fall it is likely to bring about a seed corn condition such as proved disastrous to the crop of 1918, sown from seed grown in 1917. Now, as then, inclement weather at corn planting time has forced many farmers to plant late and the crop is late in maturing.

If, as was the case in the fall of 1918, cold weather comes early, it will hit a lot of corn that has not thoroughly dried out. This injures the corn for seed.

When this happened in 1918, many growers had to send out of the State for their seed. Corn stored in an open crib at the Wooster Experiment Station that year showed only 1 per cent germinating power.

BOYS' STOCK JUDGING CLUB IS OUT TO "BRING HOME BACON" AT STATE FAIR

The Boys' Stock Judging Club of Greene County is going to "carry home the bacon" at the Ohio State Fair, if County Agent Ford S. Prince, and Fred R. Keeler, Smith-Hughes Agricultural teacher, at Beaver Creek High School have their say.

The members of the Stock Judging Club, which is composed of the following, Benny Beard, of Jefferson township; George Harte, of Beaver Creek Township, Lawrence Brown, of Beaver Creek Township, and Henry Saylor, of Spring Valley Township, alternate, will be entered in the Boys' and Girls' Stock Judging contest at the State Fair Tuesday Aug. 29.

County Agent Prince and Mr. Keeler, have been busy every day during the past week preparing the boys for the work. They will be entered in the contest to be held Tuesday and will be also entered as individuals in the contest; to be held August 30. County Agent Prince will remain until Wednesday.

The boys' instruction during the past week included meetings held at intervals since the Greene County Fair.

Under the direction of County Agent Prince and Mr. Keeler, meetings have been held at live stock farms over the county and on Thursday the team with its instructors visited the farm of Fred Flynn at Trebeins, where Shorthorns were inspected, and at the J. H. Hawkins farm in Xenia township, where Shropshire sheep were inspected. Friday the team visited the farm of J. Earl McCullin in Beaver Creek township, to inspect Durocs, and the E. E. Finney farm in Cedarville township.

ERIE FARMS BAN PIE AND COFFEE

Following five months group study of modern food principles, 15 Erie County farmwives, members of the farm bureau there, report a number of changes in the way they are feeding their families. The families, they further report, like the changes and have voted to continue on their present menus.

All 15 families report a decreased use of tea and coffee, which are generally served in large quantities. Eight have cut down on their pie ration, another favorite food. Three families have stopped using cocoa altogether, and seven have entirely done away with the use of pie.

Twelve of the 15 families have increased the use of milk, with the increase averaging a gallon and a half a week to the family. Then families increased the use of cooked cereals such as oatmeal; nine fried potatoes less often; all 15 increased the use of vegetables other than potatoes; eight used less meat; nine fried eggs fewer times and all 15 increased the use of fruits.

The work was conducted by these women as a project group of the local farm bureau, in cooperation with nutrition specialists of the State agricultural extension service. A specialist met the group once a month and led to a discussion of food principles. The changes which the group has inaugurated in the family diet are matters of their own decision, based upon the latest scientific knowledge of the subject.

LACK OF DOCTORS IN REGIONS NEAR TOWNS

Practicing in regions remote from large cities are enough country doctors to take care of things, but they are likely to lack in initial training and in opportunities to keep up with modern medical knowledge.

If, on the other hand, the country doctor is practicing in a region near a large city, he is likely to forsake his rural practice for the broader opportunities of the city.

These two facts stand out from the continuation of a survey started last month by C. E. Lively, professor of rural problems at the Ohio State University. The first finding of this study, previously announced, was that the average country doctor in Ohio has today to take care of about twice as many patients as does his city colleague.

Now Prof. Lively has carried his figures further, and has established a definite relationship between this condition and the number of city residents in a county. The more city people in a county, the fewer country doctors—this, he says, holds better than 90 per cent true for all of Ohio.

"In the 15 Ohio counties that have the largest urban population," he states, "every rural doctor now has to take care of an average of 1,512 persons. In the 15 counties of the state, which are the most thoroughly rural, there is one country doctor to every 587 persons."

"However, country doctors in the thoroughly rural counties are probably not as well prepared and equipped as those nearer cities. Only 19 percent of the first group are graduates of first class medical colleges, as compared to 28 per cent of the second group."

BEST STENOGRAPHER DECLARES PRINCE

Miss Pearl Haines, stenographer at the Greene County Farm Bureau office was too busy a person Friday to give the story of her life, the details of which we secured from County Agent Ford S. Prince.

"The best stenographer in any Farm Bureau office in the state of Ohio" is the summary of the ability and appreciation possessed by Miss Haines, by Mr. Prince.

Miss Haines experience in the County Farm Bureau office began in September 1919. She is a graduate of Central High School this city, and has never had any other graduation experience since her graduation with the exception of the work she is now engaged in, and which by the way "she just loves."

FARMERS WILL HEAR DAIRY EXPERT SPEAK

Many Greene County Farmers, and County Farm Bureau members are expected to attend the meeting to be held at the Chamber of Commerce Dayton, Tuesday Aug. 29, when W. F. Schilling, will address the audience, in the interest of the Miami Valley Co-operative Milk Producers' Association.

Mr. Schilling is president of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Dairy organization, and is recognized as a fine speaker over the country.

Tuesday night a similar meeting will be held at the Chamber of Commerce in Springfield, when Mr. Schilling and A. F. Hedges, manager of the Miami Valley Co-operative Milk Producers' Association will speak. Local farmers are expected to attend both meetings.

SEE TREMENDOUS LOSS IN APPLES

Horticulturists of the Ohio State University's extension force, whose work takes them into every apple growing county of the State, estimate that apple scab will cost Ohio 2,000,000 bushels of apples this year.

Scab is an infectious disease that has been getting worse in Ohio from year to year. This year, encouraged by weather conditions that made it hard to spray for it at just the right time, it has proved unusually injurious, the fruit men say.

BRADFUTE NAMED DIRECTOR OF GRAIN GROWERS COMPANY

Columbus, Aug. 24.—O. E. Bradfute of Xenia, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation has been chosen as a member of the new board of directors of the U. S. Grain Growers, incorporated under the reorganization plan of that concern adopted recently. Prominent farm leaders of mid-western states make up the remaining personnel of the board.

In addition to the regular board, the farmers' grain sales agency has chosen an advisory executive committee consisting of Bernard Baruch, of New York, Alexander Legge of the International Harvester company and Frank O. Wetmore of the First National bank of Chicago. Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and Secretary of Agriculture H. C. Wallace, have also been invited to serve as ex-official members to the board of representatives of the public.

The U. S. Grain Growers has been organized as a grain sales agency for some time, but because of disagreements among members of the first board, has never functioned before as a group for marketing grain.

GREENE COUNTY FARM BUREAU HAS HAD SUCCESSFUL GROWTH DURING REGIME OF FORD S. PRINCE AS AGENT IN LOCALITY

Citizens of Xenia City and of Greene County as a whole need no introduction to Ford S. Prince, agent of the Greene County Farm Bureau, the activities of which have been the subject of the reading material of this page for the past several months.

Prince is the pleasant faced fellow you see often striding down the street wearing a slouch hat, or riding a nondescript flivver that covers the miles over the county to the benefit of that county.

Despite his acquaintance over the county near and far and recognition of his ability and progress in his work, County Agent Prince is at heart a retiring individual and is too engrossed in his work to stop and give many details of his career as agent for one of the most active and prominent organizations in the state—or shall we say in the United States?

County Agent Prince began his acquaintance with Xenia citizens and farmers of the county when he took over the work of the Greene County Farm Bureau, in May, 1918. He came to this city from New Hampshire College at Durham, New Hampshire, where he taught experimental work. Before that time Prince was instructor at Michigan State College, where he taught in the soils department, his work at the New Hampshire College including the teaching of crops and farm management.

The foundation of Prince's knowledge of farm life, and problems began on the farm on which he was born and reared in Shelby County, Ohio. His interest in farm work and its proper management was sustained with the instruction he received in the agricultural department at the University of Illinois, graduating from that school in 1913 after a three years course in that department, later entering Miami University at Oxford for further study, attending that school for two years.

County Agent Prince's experience as agent for the Greene County Farm Bureau has been his first experiment of this kind. His position with the local organization was filled before his entrance by James Cook, who filled the capacity during the years 1913 and 1914.

The period after Mr. Cook's leaving the county was without a Farm Bureau agent, the organization being kept alive during that time by the farmers of the county, who sought means to raise funds to employ a wide-awake county agent.

Mr. Cook's work as county agent, during his regime here, was handled through his connection with individuals more than as an organization, as handled by County Agent Prince, who has worked up a Farm Bureau organization in the county second to none in the country due according to his statement, to the cooperation on the part of the farmers of the county.

The promotion of Farm Bureau accomplishments led by Mr. Prince who as agent crystallizes the efforts of the farmers, having included the establishment of a number of county wide organizations, which has resulted in the co-operation of the farmers of the county and to the saving of many dollars for the county agricultural man.

The credit for the forming of these organizations, according to Mr. Prince, is due solely to the farmers, the local leaders, and the special committees selected throughout the county to carry on the work to a finish.

The organizations include that of the Greene County Live Stock Shipping Association, this organization completing since its establishment one-half million dollars worth of business since the first of April, 1921, a period of 17 months. This amount meant the saving of thousands of dollars to Greene County, and is an example of the stupendous work accomplished by the members of the Association.

The Greene County branch of the Miami Valley Co-operative Milk Producers' Association, established in November, 1921, is among the outstanding accomplishments of the Greene County Farm Bureau during the past two years. The dairy organization boasts a membership of 600, secured since its organization, and now have in operation five farmers' cream stations situated at different points in Greene County. The establishment of the cream stations has boosted the price of butter fat in Greene County about five cents on the pound, gleaming about $30,000 to the farmers of the county a year. The larger amount of the credit for the establishment of this worthwhile organization, is laid at the door of the farmers of the county and the State Farm Bureau Federation.

"Without the Farm Bureau organization, the organizations of both these companies, the Live Stock Shipping Association and the dairy organization, would have been impossible," said County Agent Prince, "because there would have been no head organization through which to work, and to carry on the research and investigation work, handled by the State Farm Bureau Federation, and would have been doubly fruitless because of the lack of funds."

Third among the list of active companies organized during the reign of Prince in farm circles, has been the organization of two farmers' elevators, the Osborn Farmers'

Grain Company, and the Spring Valley Farmers' Exchange. The Greene County Farm Bureau during that time has assisted in the organization of the Cedarville Farmers' Grain Company and the Xenia Farmers' Exchange.

The accomplishments of the past include the organization of the Sheep and Wool Growers' Association.

FORD S. PRINCE

tion in Greene County, through which the sheep and wool of the county is marketed, through shipping to the Central Ohio Sheep and Wool Growers' Association at Columbus. The Farmers of Greene County have marketed 30,000 to 40,000 pounds annually of the past four years through the organization.

The foregoing organizations include the marketing establishment in connection with the Farm Bureau, this bureau now assisting in the establishment of a number of breed organizations, including the Big Type Poland China Association, the Spotted Poland China Association, the Shorthorn association, and the Duroc Jersey Association and is now in the process of organizing a Jersey Cattle club in the county.

'One of the best pieces of work in the four years' work of the Greene County Farm Bureau has been the organization of the Boys' and Girls' Clubs, during the past year,' is the opinion of Mr. Prince. The work of this branch of activity included the carrying on of the Pig, Food, Clothing, Poultry and Stock Judging Work, and out of 209 boys and girls enrolled in the clubs 156 exhibited at the Greene County Fair.

Credit for this work goes to the local leaders of the clubs who have had charge of the individual clubs. The women of the county have also started the Home Economics part of the Farm Improvement work, and put in a county wide dress form and clothing construction campaign, the women of a few of the townships have been active in putting hot school lunches in the rural schools of the county.

The men's work during the past year has included the launching of a better sires campaign, with three hundred and twenty five farmers of the county enrolled. These farmers are using nothing but pure bred sires in all kinds of live stock on their places, placing Greene County first in the state and second in the United States in the campaign.

Other projects include the advancement of better seed wheat, about one fourth of the acreage of the county being sowed in either Trumbull or Gladden varieties, poultry and feeding campaign during the past three years, the poultry culling demonstrations instructing the farmers of the county how to weed out their unprofitable hens and the feeding campaigns teaching them how to secure the most eggs at the least possible cost.

In addition, fertilizer and lime demonstrations on the soils over the county have been conducted, and through the farm account work another project, especially the Cost Accounting Ring, leading to better farm management and accounts on the farms over the county.

The eradication of the barberry plants in the county to do away with the black stem rust, that caused concern on the part of the farmers, has played a prominent part in the work during Mr. Prince's term as County Agent, who worked with the farmers of the county, with the cooperation of the United States Agricultural Department, in the eradication of the plant.

The work was started in this part of the state in 1918, when the black stem rust became so troublesome that it led to active warfare against the barberry practically all of the plants in the county being destroyed during the past year.

TO BUILD 45 LOCOMOTIVES
Lima, Aug. 26.—The Lima locomotive works has been commissioned to build forty-five engines for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad, it was announced by W. L. Reid, president. All are for heavy freight service. This brings the total orders for engines since January to more than 200.

SHOW DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SCRUB AND PURE BRED HOGS

"What is all this bunk we see in the newspapers, as the hog breeding season approaches, regarding pure bred hogs being better than any other kind?" says the farmer who has always grown scrub swine as he reads the pure bred advertisement in the newspaper, and the average farmer does raise such questions, because only 4 per cent of the American farms are pure bred.

The farmers' misgivings are answered by Mr. E. E. McCall, of Xenia, Ohio, who explains the difference between pure bred hogs and scrubs by citing two particular instances as follows: 1st, An Arkansas razorback sow, owned by the Arkansas Experiment Station, which weighed 85 pounds at two years old. She farrowed nine pigs by a scrub boar and raised five of them. At 228 days old, the pigs averaged 172 pounds, which indicates a gain of .75 pounds per day. 2nd, A Pig Club Poland China gilt owned by Ted Kryder, of McClure, Ohio, which, at one year old, farrowed nine pigs by a pure boar, saved all of them, and which, at 145 days old, averaged 214 pounds, thus showing a gain of 1.47 pounds. At 228 days old, (same age of scrubs), the pure bred pigs would have averaged 335 pounds.

Mr. McCall says the pigs cited may be extreme scrubs, but it more forcibly illustrates the "hard feeding" tendency of scrubs, while the incident of pure breeds cited is no exceptional in Big Type herds.

"The scrub hogs may be graded up," says Mr. McCall, "but even the grade hog will not produce the number of pounds of meat per 100 pounds of feed as will a pure bred." To substantiate his claim, he cites an experiment carried out by 14 farmers of Ray County, Missouri, under direction of the County Farm Bureau and the Livestock Association, and the State University. The result showed feeds required to produce 100 pounds of grain, as follows:

Corn and shorts, grade hogs, 402.4 lbs.; pure bred hogs 333.0 lbs.; Tankage, grade hogs 16.1 lbs.; pure bred hogs 10.4 lbs.; Pasture, grade hogs 133.4 days; pure bred hogs 128.0 days. Farmers cannot afford to feed scrubs, nor go through the "grading up" process when pure bred hogs can be obtained at prices in keeping with other farm products.

GREENE COUNTY IS SENDING EXHIBITS TO 1922 STATE FAIR

The regular routine of farm work over the county will be dispensed with next week, when farmers over the state will be in attendance at the largest of rural annual events, the Ohio State Fair at Columbus.

Activities at the Greene County Farm Bureau offices, will be slackened all meetings during the week being postponed in order to allow the farmers of the countryside to attend the fair.

Greene County, has usual, will take a prominent part in the exhibits at the State Fair, and will doubtless carry off many honors during the week.

Four carloads of livestock left Xenia Friday for Columbus the shipments being made by the Greene County farmers for exhibits at the fair. Among the shippers were Gowdy Williamson, who shipped Merino sheep; J. C. Williamson and son, Oxford; James Bickett, Lincoln sheep; J. H. Hawkins, Rambouillet and Shropshire sheep; Ernest Hutchison, Angus cattle; and R. D. Grieve, Poland China hogs.

This list is only partial many others making shipments during the week.

FEAR SEED CORN MAY BE LACKING

If Ohio has a cold, early fall it is likely to bring about a seed corn condition such as proved disastrous to the crop of 1918, sown from seed grown in 1917. Now, as then, inclement weather at corn planting time has forced many farmers to plant late and the crop is late in maturing.

If, as was the case in the fall of 1918, cold weather comes early, it will hit a lot of corn that has not thoroughly dried out. This injures the corn for seed.

When this happened in 1918, many growers had to send out of the State for their seed. Corn stored in an open crib at the Wooster Experiment Station that year showed only 1 per cent germinating power.

Crops extension workers of the Ohio State University, accordingly, will make a special effort this fall to bring before farmers the advantages of not waiting to select seed until all of their fields have ripened but rather to go to ripening fields and pluck the best and earliest maturing ears from the standing stalks.

BOYS' STOCK JUDGING CLUB IS OUT TO "BRING HOME BACON" AT STATE FAIR

The Boys' Stock Judging Club of Greene County is going to "carry home the bacon" at the Ohio State Fair, if County Agent Ford S. Prince, and Fred R. Keeler, Smith, Hughes Agricultural teacher, at Beaver Creek High School have their say.

The members of the Stock Judging Club, which is composed of the following: Benny Beard, of Jefferson township; George Hale, of Beaver Creek Township; Lawrence Brown, of Beaver Creek Township; and Henry Saylor, of Spring Valley Township, alternate, will be entered in the Boys' and Girls' Stock Judging contest at the State Fair Tuesday Aug. 29.

County Agent Prince and Mr. Keeler, have been busy every day during the past week preparing the boys for the work. They will be entered in the contest to be held Tuesday and will be also entered as individuals in the contest; to be held August 30. County Agent Prince will remain until Wednesday.

The boys' instruction during the past week included meetings held at intervals since the Greene County Fair.

Under the direction of County Agent Prince and Mr. Keeler, meetings have been held at live stock farms over the county and on Thursday the team with its instructors visited the farm of Fred Flynn at Trebels, where Shorthorns were inspected, and at the J. H. Hawkins farm in Xenia township, where Shropshire sheep were inspected. Friday the team visited the farm of J. Earl McCallan in Beaver Creek township, to inspect Durocs, and the E. E. Finney farm in Cedarville township.

ERIE FARMS BAN PIE AND COFFEE

Following five months group study of modern food principles, 15 Erie County farmwives, members of the farm bureaus there, report a number of changes in the way they are feeding their families. The families, they further report, like the changes and have voted to continue on their present menus.

All 15 families report a decreased use of tea and coffee, which are generally served in large quantities. Eight have cut down on their pie ration, another favorite food. Three families have stopped using coconuts altogether, and seven have entirely done away with the use of pie.

Twelve of the 15 families have increased the use of milk, with the increase averaging a gallon and a half a week to the family. Ten families increased the use of cooked cereals such as oatmeal; nine fried potatoes less often; all 15 increased the use of vegetables other than potatoes; eight used less meat; nine fried eggs fewer times and all 15 increased the use of fruits.

The work was conducted by these women as a project group of the local farm bureau, in cooperation with nutrition specialists of the State agricultural extension service. A specialist met the group once a month and led to a discussion of food principles. The changes which the group has inaugurated in the family diet are matters of their own decision, based upon the latest scientific knowledge of the subject.

LACK OF DOCTORS IN REGIONS NEAR TOWNS

Practicing in regions remote from large cities are enough country doctors to take care of things, but they are likely to lack in initial training and opportunities to keep up with modern medical knowledge.

If, on the other hand, the country doctor is practicing in a region near a large city, he is likely to forsake his rural practice for the broader opportunities of the city.

These two facts stand out from the continuation of a survey started last month by C. E. Lively, professor of rural problems at the Ohio State University. The first finding of this study, previously announced, was that the average country doctor in Ohio has today to take care of about twice as many patients as does his city colleague.

Now Prof. Lively has carried his figures further, and has established a definite relationship between this condition and the number of city residents in a county. The more city people in a county, the fewer country doctors—this, he says, holds better than 90 per cent true for all of Ohio.

"In the 15 Ohio counties that have the largest urban population," he states, "every rural doctor now has to take care of an average of 1,512 persons. In the 15 counties of the state, which are the most thoroughly rural, there is one country doctor to every 587 persons."

"However, country doctors in the thoroughly rural counties are probably not as well prepared and equipped as those nearer cities. Only 19 per cent of the first group are graduates of first class medical colleges, as compared to 28 per cent of the second group."

EVENING RECEPTION ELABORATE AFFAIR

Among the most elaborate and prettily appointed of recent social affairs was the reception given by the Misses Cora and Lucy Matthews, at their beautiful country home off the Hook road Friday evening, when seventy five people including friends of the Misses Matthews from this city and vicinity were invited to enjoy a social evening.

The spacious rooms of the Matthews home were thrown open for the enjoyment of the guests, their attractiveness being enhanced with effective decorations of potted palms and ferns combined with bouquets of apragons and sweet peas, used to try out a color scheme of pink and green. In the living room tall plants were banked in the mantles either end of the room forming a city setting for the informal program enjoyed by the guests.

MISSIONARIES ARE HONORED AT PARTY

The members of Mr. R. E. Bryson's Sabbath School class in the Second United Presbyterian Church, held an enjoyable social affair at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. The evening was spent in an informal social way. As little farewell gifts from the members of the class Mrs. McClain presented Miss Ballantyne with a silver spoon and Miss Kyle with a fountain pen. Both Miss Ballantyne and Miss Kyle expressed their appreciation and thanks to the class.

During the evening a delicious supper was served picnic fashion. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Rob Bryson and children, James and Martha, Mr. William Kyle, of Monaca, Mr. and Mrs. David Kyle, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McClellan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Earl McClellan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bull and sons, Edwin and John, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McClain and son, Ginn, Mrs. Lester Tate and three daughters, Louise, Mary and Viola Nan, Mr. and Mrs. William Short and daughter, Jane.

COMPLIMENTED WITH AFTERNOON PARTY

Mrs. Edward Keyes, of Tampa, Florida, who is the guest of relatives in this city, was complimented with another pretty party, Friday, when Mrs. Thurman Early received a company of thirty five guests at her home on South Detroit street, at an informal party.

Mrs. Early's guests spent the afternoon enjoying a social time over their needlework, the pleasant time being made more enjoyable by several clever contests, in which Mrs. Frank Keyes and Mrs. Herbert Davis were the fortunate prize winners.

A delicious two course luncheon was served by Mrs. Early. Bright bouquets of garden flowers were used in forming the attractive decorations of the rooms of the early home. Mrs. E. R. Thompson, of Muncie, Indiana, the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bayless Thompson, was among the guests of the afternoon.

AFTERNOON TEA CHARMING AFFAIR

Another of the series of delightful parties being given among the social circle of the city during the week, was given by Mrs. Paul H. Yockey and Mrs. W. Crawford Craig, at the home of Mrs. Craig on West Second street, Friday, the affair being an afternoon tea, and was among the most enjoyable of gatherings.

Forty women were received by Mrs. Craig and Mrs. Yockey for the affair, a pleasant social chat over the tea cups being the entertaining feature of the afternoon.

The attractive rooms of the Craig home were charming in their decorations of huge bouquets of summer flowers, pink and white, the color scheme of the afternoon, predominating. The guests were served at small tables centered with the bowls of blossom.

Mrs. F. M. Ganland, of Jackson, Mich., and Mrs. S. B. Yockey, of Springfield, were the out of town guests at the party.

ENTERTAINED DURING SESSION IN DAYTON

Horner, the affairs in their honor being given by Mrs. Benjamin Crosley and Mrs. Thomas Greene of Dayton, formerly of this city and members of the local council, and by Mrs. William Grothjan.

The group was entertained at the home of Mrs. Greene for lunch Wednesday and were the guests of Mrs. Crosley Wednesday evening. Mrs. Grothjan received them for dinner at her home Tuesday evening.

Several other members of Pride of Xenia Council, with representatives of Obolent Council No. 160, attended the session also.

SUPPER PARTY GIVEN FRIDAY EVENING

One of the pleasant functions of the week was a supper given by Miss Clara Allen and Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Shields, for their guests, Miss Clara Allen Marshall, of Columbus, and the Misses Margaret and Rosanna Webster of St. Louis.

The thirty five young people the invited guests of the evening, were seated at two long tables, red roses being used in the decorations. The porcelains of the Allen home were outlined with Japanese lanterns for the occasion.

Miss Ogle, of Marietta, O., was the only other out of town guest present.

GLASS FAMILY REUNION HELD THURSDAY AT SCHOOL

The annual reunion of the Glass family held Thursday at the Ross Township High School was one of the most pleasant enjoyed in a number of years.

Despite the inclement weather members of the family came from far and near, bringing well filled baskets almost two hundred being seated at the bountiful dinner spread at noon.

After dinner the election of officers took place, after which a short program was rendered. Mr. George Glass of Gladstone was elected president of the organization, Mr. Frank Glass of Bowersville, vice president, Miss Vilja Glass of Jamestown, secretary and Miss Clara Glass of Jamestown chairman of the program committee.

The first number on the program was the singing of "America" followed by prayer, led by Mr. George Glass after which Little Marcella Glass gave a splendid reading. Miss Margaret Glass of Xenia, gave a violin solo, which showed exceptional talent. Master Marvin Glass of Xenia gave a piano solo which was very much enjoyed. A piano solo was also given by Duane Hatfield, the company being then favored with a musical composition by Mrs. Richard McClellan, of Xenia, which she composed for the poem written by her mother, entitled "Mother Mine."

The program closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." During the day music was furnished by the band of Jamestown under the leadership of Mr. Charles Glass, a talented musician of that place.

INFORMALLY ENTERTAINS HONORING HOUSE GUEST

Mrs. James M. Carper of North King street, entertained Mrs. S. D. Fess, Mrs. J. H. Garlough and Mrs. McWhiney, of Yellow Springs, Friday, informally at luncheon, complimenting Mrs. F. B. Adams, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, who is a house guest at the Carper home.

Mrs. Fred Horner and daughter Mildred, of West Second street, have returned home after a visit of several days at the home of Mrs. Ben Geiger, of the Springfield pike.

Dr. and Mrs. B. D. "BIG HEAD" CAUSED RISBERG'S DOWNFALL

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—To the development of a big head as his success as a baseball player, Mrs. Agnes Risberg today attributed the failure of her matrimonial venture with Charles A. ("Swede") Risberg, who she charges with desertion and cruelty in a divorce complaint on file in superior court here.

Risberg started in baseball in "cow hollow" locally and according to Mrs. Risberg they were happy until he graduated from the Pacific coast league to the "big show." Risberg, she says, has absented himself for more than a year now and failed to respond to a plea to come home when one of their two children was ill. According to Byron C. Harker, her attorney, Risberg is playing semi-professional ball around Chicago now and getting $100 a game.

FRAULEIN COMES TO XENIA TO MEET SOLDIER FIANCE

When Paul Jenkins, 410 Washington Street, returns from New York where he went to meet the fraulein of his choice—and missed her, he will be married here to Miss Gertrude Scheurer of Coblenz, Germany.

The pretty bride-to-be arrived here Friday afternoon as the culmination of a romance that started in the Fatherland when she was causing the hearts of stalwart American youths to beat faster under their O. D. Army uniforms and her husband-to-be was a member of Uncle Sam's dashing occupational forces, stationed where he could help protect American interests, but where he could not withstand the assault, made on his own heart.

Under German skies and along the historic Rhine, the romance budded and blossomed forth, until the time when the government said the soldier-sweetheart must return to his own country, and his fraulein sweetheart was most sad at the thought. Then it was arranged that as soon as he should have again become settled in civilian life, that she should follow him across the water. Paul arrived in this country May 11, and some time later received his honorable discharge and returned to his home here.

And so it was that Miss Scheurer came to this country, and Friday afternoon arrived in Xenia. In the meantime her husband-to-be had hastened to New York to meet the boat, but somehow, in the rush of landing and the examination of passports, their hoped for meeting did not take place. The pretty fraulein came on here, while Paul was still in New York.

Miss Scheurer went into the office of the Stile, Coal Company after her arrival here, and in mixed English and German, inquired her husband's residence, and she was directed there. Saturday she was anxiously awaiting the return of Paul from New York, for as soon as he arrives, they are to be married.

HIGH SCHOOL GRID GAMES TO BE STAGED AT CO. FAIRGROUNDS

Central High School football team, will cavort in entirely new surroundings this fall.

Business Manager John R. Beacham, Friday signed articles with the Greene County Agricultural Society whereby the board of education has rented the interior of the race track at the County Fairgrounds as a football field this fall.

The necessity to rent a new field this fall resulted when the new Cox Memorial Athletic Field was not finished in time to permit play this fall, and when it was found that the Gatch Field on Dayton Avenue, which was used last year, has been sold to the Woodland Cemetery Association and is partly fenced off.

The quarter-stretch at the Fairgrounds is of ideal topography, and the turf is also excellent as members of the athletic committee found in an investigation of the field Friday afternoon. The entire space within the terms of the rental, and the best space will be selected on which to lay out the gridiron. There is also ample accommodation for spectators because of the vast size of the oval and beyond the handicap of the distance the field lies from the center of the city, the location is considered ideal.

Coach Earl F. Burgner has not yet arrived here, but owing to the fact that school will start a week later this year than formerly, athletic authorities are expecting to get in touch with the new mentor and Captain Don Currie, and arrange for practices before school starts. Considerable training will be necessary to develop an eleven that will live up to the standard set last fall, before the opening game of the season, with Greenville High, September 29. This will be the first appearance of Greenville here on the gridiron.

FORD'S PLANTS WILL CLOSE SEPTEMBER 16 FOR LACK OF COAL

Detroit, Aug. 26.—Henry Ford's plants, in and around Detroit will be shut down on September 16, because of the lack of coal.

The closing of the great automobile manufacturing establishments will throw 80,000 men out of employment right here in Detroit. The ultimate result of the shut down will be to place 2,000,000 men throughout the United States in the position of seeking jobs.

The Highland park plant has been made over for oil burners and could continue to operate indefinitely on that basis, but the very important work of keeping the fires going in the great forges cannot be done except with coal.

Back of the work that is done in the forges are the many industries, employing hundreds of thousands of men throughout the country.

Since the rail and coal strikes hit the shipment of coal, careful conservation has been the order in the Ford plants. Daily, almost hourly, the amount of fuel products has been checked until the officials almost know to a shovelful how much coal is needed.

STOLE CURLING IRON

Forest Ledbetter, 23, Alpha, was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the Dayton Work House by Judge E. D. Smith in municipal court Friday afternoon, on a petit larceny charge.

Ledbetter was arrested by Patrolman Ancil Stephens shortly after he is said to have stolen an electric curling iron from the W. C. W. Company store, East Main Street. The iron was found in his possession. The work house sentence was suspended on payment of the fine and costs and Ledbetter was released.

VACANCY TO EXIST ON STATE SUPREME COURT IS LEARNED

Candidate Must Appear at Regular Election to Fill Bench

Columbus, August, 26.—The recent resignation of former Judge Jas. G. Johnson, Springfield, from the state supreme court, in order that he might run for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, has brought about a vacancy on the state ticket which must be filled at the November election.

Announcement of this discovery was made today by state officials here. State supreme George H. Clark Canton, was appointed only until a successor is elected, and not for the full unexpired term, according to law.

The law further provides that a successor to the appointee shall be elected at the next general election. Officials have discovered.

Any candidate who wishes to have his name appear on the ballot as a candidate for the vacancy has until September 8 to file his petition, with 21,000 Ohio voters as signers, with the secretary of state.

The most logical way, according to the officials will be to have voters at the November polls write in the name of their candidate.

It is generally indicated here that if Judge Clark is a candidate, no opponent will be placed in the field by Democratic leaders.

Crawford, Jr. She obtained the warrant because she said her husband beat and kicked her when she asked for money to visit her mother. In swearing to the warrant she specified that her husband would probably be found at his parents address and a policeman who went there arrested the father when he admitted he was Fred E. Crawford. The prisoner was released later when his daughter-in-law visited the jail and said he was not the man sought.

The spacious rooms of the Matthews home were thrown open for the enjoyment of the guests, their attractiveness being enhanced with festive decorations of potted palms and ferns combined with bouquets of aspidistras and sweet peas, used to try out a color scheme of pink and green. In the living room tall plants were banked in the mantles either end of the room forming a city setting for the informal program enjoyed by the guests.

The social time during the evening was interspersed with music, several selections being given by a quartette composed of Messrs Herman Eavey, Carl Irvin, Carl Smith and Glen Reed. Duets and solos were also given by Mrs. John M. Davidson, and Miss Emma Davidson.

Paul arrived in this country May 11, and some time later received his honorable discharge and returned to his home here.

FRAULEIN COMES TO XENIA TO MEET SOLDIER FIANCE

When Paul Jenkins, 410 Washington Street, returns from New York where he went to meet the fraulein of his choice—and missed her, he will be married here to Miss Gertrude Scheurer of Coblenz, Germany.

The pretty bride-to-be arrived here Friday afternoon as the culmination of a romance that started in the Fatherland when she was causing the hearts of stalwart American youths to beat faster under her O. D. Army uniforms and her husband-to-be was a member of Uncle Sam's dashing occupational forces, stationed where he could help protect American interests, but where he could not withstand the assault, made on his own heart.

Under German skies and along the historic Rhine, the romance budded and blossomed forth, until the time when the government said the soldier-sweetheart must return to his own country, and his fraulein sweetheart was most sad at the thought. Then it was arranged that as soon as he should have again become settled in civilian life, that she should follow him across the water. Paul arrived in this country May 11, and some time later received his honorable discharge and returned to his home here.

And so it was that Miss Scheurer came to this country, and Friday afternoon arrived in Xenia. In the meantime her husband-to-be had hastened to New York to meet the boat, but somehow, in the rush of landing and the examination of passports, their hoped for meeting did not take place. The pretty fraulein came on here, while Paul was still in New York.

Miss Scheurer went into the office of the Stille, Coal Company after her arrival here, and in mixed English and German, inquired her husband's residence, and she was directed there.

Saturday she was anxiously awaiting the return of Paul from New York, for as soon as he arrives, they are to be married.

HIGH SCHOOL GRID GAMES TO BE STAGED AT CO. FAIRGROUNDS

Central High School football team, will cavort in entirely new surroundings this fall.

Business Manager John R. Beacham, Friday signed articles with the Greene County Agricultural Society whereby the board of education has rented the interior of the race track at the County Fairgrounds as a football field this fall.

Necessity to rent a new field this fall resulted when the new Cox Memorial Athletic Field was not finished in time to permit play this fall, and when it was found that the Gatch Field on Dayton Avenue, which was used last year, has been sold to the Woodland Cemetery Association and is partly fenced off.

The quarter-stretch at the Fairgrounds is of ideal topography, and the turf is also excellent as members of the athletic committee found in an investigation of the field Friday afternoon. The entire space within the racing oval is available under the terms of the rental, and the best space will be selected on which to lay out the gridiron. There is also ample accommodation for spectators because of the vast size of the oval and beyond the handicap of the distance the field lies from the center of the city, the location is considered ideal.

Coach Earl F. Burgner has not yet arrived here, but owing to the fact that school will start a week later this year than formerly, athletic authorities are expecting to get in touch with the new mentor and Captain Don Currie and arrange for practices before school starts. Considerable training will be necessary to develop an eleven that will live up to the standard set last fall, before the opening game of the season, with Greenville High, September 29. This will be the first appearance of Greenville here on the gridiron.

FORD'S PLANTS WILL CLOSE SEPTEMBER 16 FOR LACK OF COAL

Detroit, Aug. 26.—Henry Ford's plants, in and around Detroit will be shut down on September 16, because of the lack of coal.

The closing of the great automobile manufacturing establishments will throw 80,000 men out of employment right here in Detroit. The ultimate result of the shut down will be to place 2,000,000 men throughout the United States in the position of seeking jobs.

The Highland park plant has been made over for oil burners and could continue to operate indefinitely on that basis, but the very important work of keeping the fires going in the great forges cannot be done except with coal.

Back of the work that is done in the forges are the many industries, employing hundreds of thousands of men throughout the country.

Since the rail and coal strikes hit the shipment of coal, careful conservation has been the order in the Ford plants. Daily, almost hourly, the amount of fuel products has been checked until the officials almost know to a shovelful how much coal is needed.

STOLE CURLING IRON

Forest Ledbetter, 23, Alpha, was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the Dayton Work House by Judge E. D. Smith in municipal court Friday afternoon, on a petit larceny charge.

Ledbetter was arrested by Patrolman Ancil Stephens shortly after he is said to have stolen an electric curling iron from the W. C. W. Company store, East Main Street. The iron was found in his possession. The work house sentence was suspended on payment of the fine and costs and Ledbetter was released.

VACANCY TO EXIST ON STATE SUPREME COURT IS LEARNED

Candidate Must Appear at Regular Election to Fill Bench

Columbus, Aug. 26.—The recent resignation of former Judge Jas. G. Johnson, Springfield, from the state supreme court, in order that he might run for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, has brought about a vacancy on the state ticket which must be filled at the November election.

Announcement of this discovery was made today by state officials here.

State supreme George H. Clark Canton, was appointed only until a successor is elected, and not for the full unexpired term, according to law.

The law further provides that a successor to the appointee shall be elected at the next general election, officials have discovered.

Any candidate who wishes to have his name appear on the ballot as a candidate for the vacancy has until September 8 to file his petition, with 21,000 Ohio voters as signers, with the secretary of state.

The most logical way, according to the officials will be to have voters at the November polls write in the name of their candidate. It is generally indicated here that if Judge Clark is a candidate, no opponent will be placed in the field by Democratic leaders.

CHILD PLAYING TAG IS KILLED BY AUTO

Cincinnati, Aug. 26.—Darting from behind a parked automobile truck directly into the path of a passing automobile yesterday during a game of "tag" Alfred Giaccio, 6, was thrown head first against the concrete curbing and injured fatally. The driver of the car who tried in vain to stop, took the boy to the city hospital.

He died soon after being received.

WRONG MAN CONFINED IN JAIL BY DAUGHTER IN LAW

Cincinnati, Aug. 26.—Fred E. Crawford Sr., spent 8 hours in jail yesterday because his daughter-in-law Mrs. Mamie Crawford, 24 neglected to specify in a warrant charging her husband with assault and battery, that the man to be arrested was Fred E. Crawford, Jr. She obtained the warrant because she said her husband beat and kicked her when she asked for money to visit her mother. In swearing to the warrant she specified that her husband would probably be found at his parents address and a policeman who went there arrested the father when he admitted he was Fred E. Crawford. The prisoner was released later when his daughter-in-law visited the jail and said he was not the man sought.

MILFORD'S DRY MAYOR IS OFFERED BALTIMORE JOB

Cincinnati, Aug. 26.—M. B. Scott, mayor of the village of Milford and the scourge of Cincinnati liquor law violators, found out that his fame had spread farther than the limits of his own state when he received a letter signed by a number of citizens of Baltimore, Md., asking him to transfer his residence to that city and enter the race for mayor. The committee which signed the letter said that Baltimore needed the sort of cleaning up that Mayor Scott was giving Ohio and begged him to consider the offer in all seriousness. Mr. Scott said that his mission lay in Milford and he had no idea of forsaking it.

Members of the city board of education have closed a contract for the purchase of 1,500 opera seats with which to equip the two auditoriums in the Central High School and Lincoln High School buildings.

Nine hundred of the seats will be used to furnish the auditorium of Central High School, where they will be permanent fixtures. Six hundred seats were purchased for the Lincoln building, the balcony seats to be permanent and the seats on the main floor, to be movable so that basketball games and other functions can be staged there, when the stage is in use.

GREENE COUNTY FARM BUREAU HAS HAD SUCCESSFUL GROWTH DURING REGIME OF FORD S. PRINCE AS AGENT IN LOCALITY

Citizens of Xenia City and of Greene County as a whole need no introduction to Ford S. Prince, agent of the Greene County Farm Bureau, the activities of which have been the subject of the reading material of this page for the past several months.

Prince is the pleasant, ruddy-faced man you see often striding down the street wearing a slouch hat, or riding a nondescript flyer that covers the miles over the county to the benefit of that county.

Despite his acquaintance over the county near and far and recognition of his ability and progress in his work, County Agent Prince is at heart a retiring individual and is too engrossed in his work to stop and give many details of his career as agent for one of the most active and prominent organizations in the state.—or shall we say in the United States?

County Agent Prince began his acquaintance with Xenia citizens and farmers of the county when he took over the work of the Greene County Farm Bureau, in May, 1913. He came to this city from New Hampshire College at Durham, New Hampshire, where he taught experimental work. Before that time Prince was instructor at Michigan State College, where he taught in the soils department, his work at the New Hampshire College including the teaching of crops and farm management.

The foundation of Prince's knowledge of farm life, and problems began on the farm on which he was born and reared in Shelby County, Ohio. His interest in farm work and its proper management was satisfied with the instruction he received in the agricultural department at the University of Illinois, graduating from that school in 1913 after a three years course in that department, later entering Miami University at Oxford for further study, attending that school for two years.

County Agent Prince's experience as agent for the Greene County Farm Bureau has been his first experience of this kind. His position with the local organization was filled before his entrance by James Cook, who filled the capacity during the years 1913 and 1914. The period after Mr. Cook's leaving the county was without a Farm Bureau agent, the organization being kept alive during that time by the farmers of the county, who sought means to raise funds to employ a wide-awake agent.

Mr. Cook's work as county agent, during his regime here, was handled through his connection with individuals more than as an organization, as handled by County Agent Prince, who has worked up a Farm Bureau organization in the county second to none in the country due according to his statement, to the cooperation on the part of the farmers of the county.

The promotion of Farm Bureau accomplishments led by Mr. Prince who as agent crystallizes the efforts of the farmers, having included the establishment of a number of county wide organizations, which has resulted in the co-operation of the farmers of the county and to the saving of many dollars for the county agricultural man.

The credit for the forming of these organizations, according to Mr. Prince, is due solely to the farmers, the local leaders, and the special committees selected throughout the county to carry on the work to a finish.

The organizations include that of the Greene County Live Stock Shipping Association, this organization completing since its establishment one-half million dollars worth of business since the first of April, 1921, a period of 17 months. This amount meant the saving of thousands of dollars to Greene County, and is an example of the stupendous work accomplished by the members of the Association.

The Greene County branch of the Miami Valley Cooperative Milk Producers' Association, established in November, 1921, is among the outstanding accomplishments of the Greene County Farm Bureau during the past two years. The dairy organization boasts a membership of 600, secured since its organization, and now have in operation five farmers' cream stations situated at different points in Greene County. The establishment of the cream stations has boosted the price of butter fat in Greene County about five cents on the pound, gleaming about $30,000 to the farmers of the county a year. The larger amount of this credit for the establishment of this worthwhile organization, is laid at the door of the farmers of the county and the State Farm Bureau Federation.

"Without the Farm Bureau organization, the organizations of both these companies, the Live Stock Shipping Association and the dairy organization, would have been impossible," said County Agent Prince, "because they would have been no head organization through which to work, and to carry on the research and investigation work, handled by the State Farm Bureau Federation, and would have been doubly fruitless because of the lack of funds."

Third among the list of active companies organized during the reign of Prince in farm circles, has been the organization of two farmers' elevators, the Osborn Farmers'

Grain Company, and the Spring Valley Farmers' Exchange. The Greene County Farm Bureau during that time has assisted in the organization of the Cedarville Farmers' Grain Company and the Xenia Farmers' Exchange.

The accomplishments of the past include the organization of the Sheep and Wool Growers' Association.

FORD S. PRINCE

tion in Greene County, through which the sheep and wool of the county is marketed, through shipping to the Central Ohio Sheep and Wool Growers' Association at Columbus. The Farmers of Greene County have marketed 30,000 to 40,000 pounds annually of the past four years through the organization.

The foregoing organizations include the marketing establishments in connection with the Farm Bureau, this bureau now assisting in the establishment of a number of breed organizations, including the Big Type Poland China Association, the Spotted Poland China Association, the Shorthorn Association, and the Jersey Association, and is now in the process of organizing a Jersey Cattle club in the county.

"One of the best pieces of work in the four years' work of the Greene County Farm Bureau has been the organization of the Boys' and Girls' Clubs, during the past year," is the opinion of Mr. Prince. The work of this branch of activity included the carrying on of the Pig, Food, Clothing, Poultry and Stock Judging Club, and out of 209 boys and girls enrolled in the clubs 156 exhibited at the Greene County Fair.

Credit for this work goes to the local leaders of the clubs who have had charge of the individual clubs. The women of the county have also started the Home Economics part of the Farm Improvement work, and put in a county wide dress form and clothing construction campaign, the women of a few of the townships have been active in putting hot school lunches in the rural schools of the county.

The men's work during the past year has included the launching of a better sires campaign, with three hundred and twenty-five farmers of the county enrolled. These farmers are using nothing but pure bred sires in all kinds of live stock on their places, placing Greene County first in the state and second in the United States in the campaign.

Other projects include the advancement of better seed wheat, about one fourth of the acreage of the county being sowed in either Trumbull or Gladden varieties, poultry and feeding campaign during the past three years, the poultry culling demonstrations instructing the farmers of the county how to weed out their unprofitable hens and the feeding campaigns teaching them how to secure the most eggs at the least possible cost.

In addition, fertilizer and lime demonstrations on the soils over the county have been conducted, and through the farm account work another project, especially the Cost Accounting Ring, leading to better farm management and accounts on the farms over the county.

The eradication of the barberry plants in the county to do away with the black stem rust, that caused concern on the part of the farmers, has played a prominent part in the work during Mr. Prince's term as County Agent, who worked with the farmers of the county, with the cooperation of the United States Agricultural Department, in the eradication of the plant. The work was started in this part of the state in 1918, when the black stem rust became so troublesome that it led to active warfare against the barberry practically all of the plants in the county being destroyed during the past year.

TO BUILD 45 LOCOMOTIVES
Lima, Aug. 26.—The Lima locomotive works has been commissioned to build forty-five engines for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad, it was announced by W. L. Reid, president. All are for heavy freight service. This brings the total orders for engines since January to more than 200.

SHOW DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SCRUB AND PURE BRED HOGS

"What is all this bunk we see in the newspapers, as the hog breeding season approaches, regarding pure bred hogs being better than any other kind?" says the farmer who has always grown scrub swine as he reads the pure bred advertisement in the newspaper, and the average farmer does raise such questions, because only 4 per cent on the American farms are pure bred.

The farmers' misgivings are answered by Mr. E. E. McCall, of Xenia, Ohio, who explains the difference between pure bred hogs and scrubs by citing two particular instances as follows: 1st, An Arkansas razorback sow, owned by the Arkansas Experiment Station, which weighed 85 pounds at two years old. She farrowed nine pigs by a scrub boar and raised five of them. At 228 days old, the pigs averaged 172 pounds, which indicates a gain of .75 pounds per day. 2nd, A Pig Club Poland China gilt owned by Ted Kryder, of McClure, Ohio, which, at one year old, farrowed nine pigs by a pure boar, saved all of them, and which, at 145 days old, averaged 214 pounds, thus showing a gain of 1.47 pounds. At 228 days old, (same age of scrubs), the pure bred pigs would have averaged 335 pounds.

Mr. McCall says the pigs cited may be extreme cases, but it more forcibly illustrates the "hard feeding" tendency of scrubs, while the incident of pure breeds cited is an exceptional in Big Type herds.

"The scrub hogs may be graded up," says Mr. McCall, "but even the grade hog will not produce the number of pounds of meat per 100 pounds of feed as will a pure bred." To substantiate his claim, he cites an experiment carried out by 14 farmers of Ray County, Missouri, under direction of the County Farm Bureau and Livestock Association, and the State University. The result showed feeds required to produce 100 pounds of grain, as follows:

Corn and shorts, grade hogs, 402.4 lbs., pure bred hogs 333.0 lbs.
Tankage, grade hogs 16.1 lbs., pure bred hogs 10.4 lbs.
Pasture, grade hogs 133.4 days, pure bred hogs 128.0 days.
Farmers cannot afford to feed scrubs, nor go through the "grading up" process when pure bred hogs can be obtained at prices in keeping with other farm products.

GREENE COUNTY IS SENDING EXHIBITS TO 1922 STATE FAIR

The regular routine of farm work over the county will be dispensed with next week, when farmers over the state will be in attendance at the largest of rural annual events, the Ohio State Fair at Columbus.

Activities at the Greene County Farm Bureau offices, will be slackened all meetings during the week being postponed in order to allow the farmers of the countryside to attend the fair.

Greene County, has usual, will take a prominent part in the exhibits at the State Fair, and will doubtless carry off many honors during the week.

Four carloads of livestock left Xenia Friday for Columbus the shipments being made by the Greene County farmers for exhibits at the fair. Among the shippers were Gowdy Williamson, who shipped Merino sheep; J. C. Williamson and son, Oxford; James Bickett, Lincoln; J. H. Hawkins, Ramboillet; and Shropshire sheep; Ernest Hutchison, Angus cattle; and R. D. Grieve, Poland China hogs.

This list is only partial many others making shipments during the week.

FEAR SEED CORN MAY BE LACKING

If Ohio has a cold, early fall it is likely to bring about a seed corn condition such as proved disastrous to the crop of 1918, sown from seed grown in 1917. Now, as then, inclement weather at corn planting time has forced many farmers to plant late and the crop is late in maturing. If, as was the case in the fall of 1918, cold weather comes early, it will hit a lot of corn that has not thoroughly dried out. This injures the corn for seed.

When this happened in 1918, many growers had to send out of the State for their seed. Corn stored in an open crib at the Wooster Experiment Station that year showed only 1 per cent germinating power.

Crops extension workers of the Ohio State University, accordingly, will make a special effort this fall to bring before farmers the advantages of not waiting to select seed until all of their fields have ripened but rather to go to ripening fields and pluck the best and earliest maturing ears from the standing stalks.

BOYS' STOCK JUDGING CLUB IS OUT TO "BRING HOME BACON" AT STATE FAIR

The Boys' Stock Judging Club of Greene County is going to "carry home the bacon" at the Ohio State Fair, if County Agent Ford S. Prince, and Fred R. Keeler, Smith-Hughes Agricultural teacher, at Beaver Creek High School have their say.

The members of the Stock Judging Club, which is composed of the following: Penny Beard, of Jefferson township; George Harte, of Beaver Creek Township; Lawrence Brown, of Beaver Creek Township; and Henry Saylor, of Spring Valley Township, alternate, will be entered in the Boys' and Girls' Stock Judging contest at the State Fair Tuesday Aug. 29.

County Agent Prince and Mr. Keeler, have been busy every day during the past week preparing the boys for the work. They will be entered in the contest to be held Tuesday and will be also entered as individuals in the contest, to be held August 30. County Agent Prince will remain until Wednesday.

The boys' instruction during the past week included meetings held at intervals since the Greene County Fair.

Under the direction of County Agent Prince and Mr. Keeler, meetings have been held at live stock farms over the county and on Thursday the team with its instructors visited the farm of Fred Flynn at Trebeins, where Shorthorns were inspected, and at the J. H. Hawkins farm in Xenia township, where Shropshire sheep were inspected. Friday the team visited the farm of J. Earl McCallan in Beaver Creek township, to inspect Durocs, and the E. E. Finney farm in Cedarville township.

ERIE FARMS BAN PIE AND COFFEE

Following five months group study of modern food principles, 15 Erie County farmwives, members of the farm bureau there, report a number of changes in the way they are feeding their families. The families, they further report, like the changes and have voted to continue on their present menus.

All 15 families report a decreased use of tea and coffee, which are generally served in large quantities. Eight have cut down on their pie ration, another favorite food. Three families have stopped using cocoa altogether, and seven have entirely done away with the use of pie.

Twelve of the 15 families have increased the use of milk, with an increase averaging a gallon and a half a week to the family. Then families increased the use of cooked cereals such as oatmeal; nine fried potatoes less often; all 15 increased the use of vegetables other than potatoes; eight used less meat; nine fried eggs fewer times and all 15 increased the use of fruits.

The work was conducted by these women as a project group of the local farm bureau, in cooperation with nutrition specialists of the State agricultural extension service. A special meeting of the group once a month and led to a discussion of food principles. The changes which the group has inaugurated in the family diet are matters of their own decision, based upon the latest scientific knowledge of the subject.

LACK OF DOCTORS IN REGIONS NEAR TOWNS

Practicing in regions remote from large cities are enough country doctors to take care of things, but they are likely to lack in initial training and in opportunities to keep up with modern medical knowledge.

If, on the other hand, the country doctor is practicing in a region near a large city, he is likely to forsake his rural practice for the broader opportunities of the city.

These two facts stand out from the continuation of a survey started last month by C. E. Lively, professor of rural problems at the Ohio State University. The first finding of this study, previously announced, was that the average country doctor in Ohio has today to take care of about twice as many patients as does his city colleague.

Now Prof. Lively has carried his figures further, and has established a definite relationship between this condition and the number of city residents in a county. The more city people in a county, the fewer country doctors—this, he says, holds better than 90 per cent true for all of Ohio. "In the 15 Ohio counties that have the largest urban population," he states, "every rural doctor now has to take care of an average of 1512 persons. In the 15 counties of the state, which are the most thoroughly rural, there is one country doctor to every 887 persons."

However, country doctors in the thoroughly rural counties are probably not as well prepared and equipped as those nearer cities. Only 19 per cent of the first group are graduates of first class medical colleges, as compared to 28 per cent of the second group.

BRADFUTE NAMED DIRECTOR OF GRAIN GROWERS COMPANY

Columbus, Aug. 24.—O. E. Bradfute of Xenia, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation has been chosen as a member of the new board of directors of the U. S. Grain Growers, incorporated under the reorganization plan of that concern adopted recently. Prominent farm leaders of mid-western states make up the remaining personnel of the board.

In addition to the regular board, the farmers' grain sales agency has chosen an advisory executive committee consisting of Bernard Baruch, of New York; Alexander Legge of the International Harvester company and Frank O. Wetmore of the First National Bank of Chicago. Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and Secretary of Agriculture H. C. Wallace, have also been invited to serve as ex-official members to the board of representatives of the public.

The U. S. Grain Growers has been organized as a grain sales agency for some time, but because of disagreements among members of the first board, has never functioned before as a group for marketing grain.

EVENING RECEPTION

ELABORATE AFFAIR

Among the most elaborate and prettily appointed of recent social affairs, was the reception given by the Misses Cora and Lucy Matthews, at their beautiful country home off the Hook road Friday evening, when seventy five people including friends of the Misses Matthews from this city and vicinity were invited to enjoy a social evening.

The spacious rooms of the Matthews home were thrown open for the enjoyment of the guests, their attractiveness being enhanced by effective decorations of potted palms and ferns combined with bouquets of snapdragons and sweet peas, used to carry out a color scheme of pink and green. In the living room tall plants were banked in the mantles at either end of the room forming a pretty setting for the informal program enjoyed by the guests.

The social time during the evening was interspersed with music, several selections being given by a quartette composed of Messrs Herman Eavey, Carl Irvin, Carl Smith and Glen Reed. Duets and solos were also given by Mrs. John M. Davidson and Miss Emma Davidson.

A two course luncheon was served later in the evening, dainty appointments being carried out in the courses.

MISSIONARIES ARE HONORED AT PARTY

The members of Mr. E. E. Bryson's Sabbath School class in the Second United Presbyterian Church, held an enjoyable social affair at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Short, on the Stone Road, Friday evening, in honor of Miss Janet Ballantyne and Miss Mary Kyle who will leave soon to take up missionary work in India. The evening was spent in an informal social way. As little farewell gifts from the members of the class Mrs. McClain presented Miss Ballantyne with a silver spoon and Miss Kyle with a fountain pen. Both Miss Ballantyne and Miss Kyle expressed their appreciation and thanks to the class.

During the evening a delicious supper was served picnic fashion. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Rob Bryson and children, James and Martha, Mr. William Kyle, of Montana, Mr. and Mrs. David Kyle, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McClellan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Earl McClellan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bull and sons, Edwin and John, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McClain and son, Ginn, Mrs. Lester Tate and three daughters, Louise, Mary and Viola Nan, Mr. and Mrs. William Short and daughter, Jane.

COMPLIMENTED WITH AFTERNOON PARTY

Mrs. Edward Keyes, of Tampa, Florida, who is the guest of relatives in this city, was complimented with another pretty party, Friday, when Mrs. Thurman Early received a company of thirty five guests at her home on South Detroit street, at an informal party.

Mrs. Early's guests spent the afternoon enjoying a social time over their needlework, the pleasant time being made more enjoyable by several clever contests, in which Mrs. Frank Keyes and Mrs. Herbert Davis were the fortunate prize winners.

A delicious two course luncheon was served by Mrs. Early. Bright bouquets of garden flowers were used in forming the attractive decorations of the rooms of the early home. Mrs. E. R. Thompson, of Muncie, Indiana, the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bayless Thompson, was among the guests of the afternoon.

AFTERNOON TEA

CHARMING AFFAIR

Another of the series of delightful parties being given among the social circle of the city during the week, was given by Mrs. Paul H. Yockey and Mrs. W. Crawford Craig, at the home of Mrs. Craig on West Second street, Friday, the affair being an afternoon tea, and was among the most enjoyable of gatherings.

Forty women were received by Mrs. Craig, and Mrs. Yockey for the affair, a pleasant social chat over the tea cups being the entertaining feature of the afternoon.

The attractive rooms of the Craig home were charming in their decorations of huge bouquets of summer flowers, pink and white the color scheme of the afternoon, predominating. The guests were served at small tables centered with the bowls of blossom.

Mrs. F. M. Gannard, of Jackson, Mich., and Mrs. S. B. Yockey, of Springfield, were the out of town guests at the party.

"BIG HEAD" CAUSED RISBERG'S DOWNFALL

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—To the development of a big head as his success as a baseball player, Mrs. Agnes Risberg today attributed the failure of her matrimonial venture with Charles A. ("Swede") Risberg, who she charges with desertion and cruelty in a divorce complaint on file in superior court here.

Risberg started in baseball in "cow holler" locally and according to Mrs. Risberg they were happy until he graduated from the Pacific coast league to the "big show." Risberg, she says, has absented himself for more than a year now and failed to respond to a plea to come home when one of their two children was ill.

According to Byron C. Barker, her attorney, Risberg is playing semi professional ball around Chicago now and getting $100 a game.

FRAULEIN COMES TO XENIA TO MEET SOLDIER FIANCE

When Paul Jenkins, 410 Washington Street, returns from New York where he went to meet the fraulein of his choice—and missed her, he will be married here to Miss Gertrude Scheurer of Coblenz, Germany.

The pretty bride-to-be arrived here Friday afternoon as the culmination of a romance that started in the Fatherland when she was causing the heart of stalwart American youths to beat faster under their O. D. Army uniforms and her husband-to-be was a member of Uncle Sam's dashing occupational forces, stationed where he could help protect American interests, but where he could not withstand the assault, made on his own heart.

Under German ailes and along the historic Rhine, the romance budded and blossomed forth, until the time when the government said the soldier-sweetheart must return to his own country, and his fraulein sweetheart was most sad at the thought. Then it was arranged that as soon as he should have again become settled in civilian life, she should follow him across the water. Paul arrived in this country May 11, and some time later received his honorable discharge and returned to his home here.

And so it was that Miss Scheurer came to this country, and Friday afternoon arrived in Xenia. In the meantime her husband-to-be had hastened to New York to meet the boat, but somehow, in the rush of landing and the examination of passports, their hoped for meeting did not take place. The pretty fraulein came on here, while Paul was still in New York.

Miss Scheurer went into the office of the Stille, Coal Company after her arrival here, and in mixed English and German, inquired her husband's residence, and she was directed there. Saturday she was anxiously awaiting the return of Paul from New York, for as soon as he arrives, they are to be married.

HIGH SCHOOL GRID GAMES TO BE STAGED AT CO. FAIRGROUNDS

Central High School football team, will cavort in entirely new surroundings this fall.

Business Manager John R. Beach, Friday signed articles with the Greene County Agricultural Society whereby the board of education has rented the interior of the race track at the County Fairgrounds as a football field this fall.

Necessity to rent a new field this fall resulted when the new Cox Memorial Athletic Field was not finished in time to permit play this fall, and when it was found that the Gatch Field on Dayton Avenue, which was used last year, has been sold to the Woodland Cemetery Association and is partly fenced off.

The quarter-stretch at the Fairgrounds is of ideal topography, and the turf is also excellent as members of the athletic committee found in an investigation of the field Friday afternoon. The entire space within the racing oval is available under the terms of the rental, and the best space will be selected on which to lay out the gridiron. There is also ample accommodation for spectators because of the vast size of the oval and beyond the handicap of the distance the field lies from the center of the city, the location is considered ideal.

Coach Earl F. Burgner has not yet arrived here, but owing to the fact that school will start a week later this year than formerly, athletic authorities are expecting to get in touch with the new mentor and Captain Don Currie, and arrange for practices before school starts. Considerable training will be necessary to develop an eleven that will live up to the standard set last fall, before the opening game of the season, with Greenville High, September 29. This will be the first appearance of Greenville here on the gridiron.

FORD'S PLANTS WILL CLOSE SEPTEMBER 16 FOR LACK OF COAL

Detroit, Aug. 26.—Henry Ford's plant, in and around Detroit, will be shut down on September 16, because of the lack of coal.

The closing of the great automobile manufacturing establishments will throw 80,000 men out of employment right here in Detroit. The ultimate result of the shut down will be to place 2,000,000 men throughout the United States in the position of seeking jobs.

The Highland park plant has been made over for oil burners and could continue to operate indefinitely on that basis, but the very important work of keeping the fires going in the great forges cannot be done except with coal.

Back of the work that is done in the forges are the many industries, employing hundreds of thousands of men throughout the country.

Since the rail and coal strikes hit the shipment of coal, careful conservation has been the order in the Ford plants. Daily, almost hourly, the amount of fuel products has been checked until the officials almost knew to a shovelful how much coal is needed.

STOLE CURLING IRON

Forest Ledbetter, 23, Alpha, was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the Dayton Work House by Judge E. D. Smith in municipal court Friday afternoon, on a petit larceny charge.

Ledbetter was arrested by Patrolman Ancil Stephens shortly after he is said to have stolen an electric curling iron from the W. C. W. Company store, East Main Street. The iron was found in his possession. The work house sentence was suspended on payment of the fine and costs and Ledbetter was released.

VACANCY TO EXIST ON STATE SUPREME COURT IS LEARNED

Candidate Must Appear at Regular Election to Fill Bench

Columbus, Aug. 26.—The recent resignation of former Judge Jas. G. Johnson, Springfield, from the state supreme court, in order that he might run for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, has brought about a vacancy on the state ticket which must be filled at the November election.

Announcement of this discovery was made today by state officials here.

State supreme George H. Clark Canton, was appointed only until a successor is elected, and not for the full unexpired term, according to law.

The law further provides that a successor to the appointee shall be elected at the next general election, officials have discovered.

Any candidate who wishes to have his name appear on the ballot as a candidate for the vacancy has until September 8 to file his petition, with 21,000 Ohio voters as signers, with the secretary of state.

The most logical way, according to the officials will be to have voters at the November polls write in the name of their candidate.

It is generally indicated here that if Judge Clark is a candidate, no opponent will be placed in the field by Democratic leaders.

WRONG MAN CONFINED IN JAIL BY DAUGHTER IN LAW

Cincinnati, Aug. 26.—Fred E. Crawford Sr., spent 3 hours in jail yesterday because his daughter-in-law Mrs. Mamie Crawford, 24 neglected to specify in a warrant charging her husband with assault and battery, that the man to be arrested was Fred E. Crawford, Jr. She obtained the warrant because she said her husband beat and kicked her, when she asked for money to visit her mother. In swearing to the warrant she specified that her husband would probably be found at his parents address and a policeman who went there arrested the father when he admitted he was Fred E. Crawford. The prisoner was released later when his daughter-in-law visited the jail and said he was not the man sought.

MILFORD'S DRY MAYOR IS OFFERED BALTIMORE JOB

Cincinnati, Aug. 26.—M. B. Scott, mayor of the village of Milford and the scourge of Cincinnati liquor law violators, found out that his fame had spread farther than the limits of his own state when he received a letter signed by a number of citizens of Baltimore, Md., asking him to transfer his residence to that city and enter the race for mayor. The committee which signed the letter said that Baltimore needed the sort of cleaning up that Mayor Scott was giving Ohio and begged him to consider the offer in all seriousness. Mr. Scott said that his mission lay in Milford and he had no idea of forsaking it.

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE GETTING READY FOR ITS FALL OPENING

With the return to Cedarville of Dr. W. R. McChesney, president of Cedarville College, preparations for the opening of the College September 12, are expected to move along quickly.

College officials expect as many or more students than attended the Reformed Presbyterian School last year when 125 pursued their studies at the institution. Deputy Probate Judge S. C. Wright, who has been acting as Registrar, has been busy enrolling the students for the coming term and arranging lodging for them.

Until the proposed new girls dormitory is erected, women as well as men students will have to be taken care of in lodging houses in the village. The new dorm has not yet been started nor has the contract been let, although the new science hall which is under course of construction, is rapidly being pushed to completion is the hope that it may be ready for use before the school year is ended.

The size of the College faculty has been increased by one member this year, Miss Sarah E. Porter, of Edgarton, Mass., making the newly created position of teacher of American literature and rhetoric and as stenographer in the College office. Other new teachers are Miss Florence Summers, of Republic, Ohio, who will be head of the department of education, and who was for four years principal of Cedarville High School; the Rev. B. E. Robinson, of Greenville, Mich., who will be professor of sociology, and Prof. Frazer who will be professor of science, succeeding Prof. Leroy Allen. A new coach and director of athletics for the College and Cedarville High School will succeed Coach Blackburn as director of recreation this year.

The erection of three new buildings, of which the science hall is one, will mean an enlargement of the college curriculum and an increase in the faculty, when they are completed.

S. & X. TRACTION LINE GRANTED ITS FIRST FRANCHISE BY CITY

For the first time in its history the Xenia and Springfield Traction Company will soon be running its cars over its own right of way into the city of Xenia.

At the special meeting of the city commission held Friday evening the company was granted a franchise from Fairground Avenue to Main St., over Detroit Street. The franchise over that section of the city was granted twenty years ago to the old Rapid Transit line which was later abandoned and the track taken up with the exception of the track from the Fairground road to Main Street over which the D. S. and X. has been operating its cars.

The new franchise granted Friday night is the first that has been given directly to the Springfield Traction Company by the city.

The commission also passed an ordinance Friday night regulating salaries of firemen, which fixes the salary of the chief of the department, at $150 a month.

Styles BY LENORE

About this time of the Summer the linen of gingham frock which has been worn all season and has undergone several tubbing, can usually stand a freshening process with the aid of new collar and cuff accessories. White and ecru are the shades most in demand, the shops report. One of the newer collar and cuff sets is illustrated here. It is an attractive combination of plain and dotted organdy.

To throw a gayly colored veil around the brim of the sport hat has been one of the fads of the season. A deep border of wool and silk is a new feature of the hexagonal mesh veil worn by the perky looking lady in the sketch.

The market showed what it could do with a lightening of the restrictive influence exercised by the two strikes last Monday, when sales approached the one million mark. Buying came from all parts of the country. Which apparently is to witness a bull market this early fall, providing the shopmen's strike does not continue long. How far the movement will extend the sagacious prognosticator cannot tell. In its favor are the prevailing ease of money, the crops, and the prospects in industry; against it the foreign situation.

GIVES ACCOUNT OF TRIP

James Albert Davis, who passed through Xenia, May 26th of last year on his trip, from Philadelphia, Pa., to California is still in Los Angeles. His wife who remained in Maryland last year, joined Mr. Davis, in March of this year. Mr. Davis wrote a very interesting story of his trip, entitled from coast to coast via auto and tent, giving a general description of the country, the places visited, roads and other interesting features.

Thomas Cook, said to be a detective in Tranchant's employ, as party defendant. Because she would not accede to his demands of marriage, Miss Conrad put forth in her suit, she was threatened with prosecution by Tranchant.

According to the story told by Miss Conrad, Tranchant, who is said to be of French descent, became acquainted with her while she was working in a drug store in Denver in April 1918. His attentions became so embarrassing she claims that she was forced to leave her position.

She further claims that Tranchant loaned her $100 with which to take a course in pharmacy and also bought her an auto while in Denver. Becoming a nervous wreck from his insistence, she claims the fled to Casper, Wyoming, California, Springfield, Ohio, and other places to escape him.

While in Springfield, she claims Tranchant took her to a hospital and advanced money for hospital treatments. He again insisted on marriage so strongly, she said, that she was again forced to flee in fear. She then went to California, she claims, and has been hounded by Tranchant and his detectives who threaten her with prosecution unless she returns money he advanced her, or accedes to her wishes.

No knowledge of the woman's residence in Springfield, could be obtained Friday.

A Stenographer's Romance

BY JANE PHELPS

AN AMUSING EPISODE

Chapter 54

"Take a good look at me, Gladys," Nellie said when she came in one afternoon. "Can you see wings sprouting?"

"No, nor feel them either," Gladys passed her hand over Nellie's shoulder.

"Look good!—now do you see any pin feathers?"

"What are you talking about, Nellie Riley?"

"Some men in the subway called me a 'chicken' and then made goo-goo eyes at me, and tried to flirt with me. I wondered if I had wings or pin feathers and so looked simple."

Corra and Gladys laughed, but they soon sobered. Nellie's lovely piquant face, so young and innocent, was always attracting attention. Often, even when with them, men passed remarks about her.

"You'd have thought the subway was a barn yard—like Miss Carter's. One fellow said: 'I bet I catch that chicken' and the other wouldn't bet with him because he said he knew he'd lose. I wish he had—but I had the laugh on them both! They had to leave the car people laughed so."

"What did you do?"

"Nothing much! Just told them if they'd look in the looking glass they'd know that not even a rooster, let alone a chicken would be caught by them. Then the folks all around just howled, and one man said—a nice looking man who had a young girl with him: 'That's right, young lady. Men of that kind are beneath the notice even of a rooster.' Then the two of them got awfully red and squirmed out of their seats and got out the next stop. Oh, it was rich!"

When the girls stopped laughing, Gladys said:

"Whatever we should do without you I don't know. How do you think of such funny things to say and things that make people behave too?"

"Oh, they just come! I don't think at all."

All these little happenings in each other's lives were of intense interest to the girls. Nellie often thought of what Gladys had said: "Girls need someone to talk to, a home of some kind that is their own." This may have been Nellie's salvation, having someone to talk to, someone interested in her. She was irrepressible, and would have been in danger of making undesirable acquaintances had she not known the girls were waiting for her; interested in all she did or that happened to her.

Since the very beginning of her work in the offices of Fallon and Son there had been a slight, yet obvious change in Nellie. She seemed to be trying to act refined in manner and speech. She had gradually left off using much of the slang with which she had punctuated her remarks, and was growing more studious, more anxious to learn.

She also took greater pains with her clothes, and her person. She always had been dainty, now she was immaculate. She rose earlier in the morning that she might have time to attend to her finger nails. When Hilda laughed at her, she said:

"I've got a fine position, I'm not going to disgrace the office by looking sloppy. But to Corra and Gladys she said:

"I've been watching Miss Dorothy Fallon whenever she comes in. Of course I can't have clothes like hers, but I can keep my hands nice and try to look as well as I can."

Nellie often talked of Miss Dorothy and Corra noticed that at such times most of her gaiety disappeared. She invariably connected her name with that of her cousin George Fallon, and would speculate as to whether they cared for each other, would ever get married—unconscious that she was showing to Corra her own interest in her employer, that there was a tinge of sadness in her voice when she spoke of him and his cousin.

If Nellie Riley had been pretty when she left Miss Carter's—a poor half starved little nobody—now at 20, with good clothes and wholesome food she had become really beautiful. Her fine skin, devoid of any makeup, her heavy curling hair, her dainty features, made her one of the prettiest of working girls. "Too pretty," Miss Jones told Mr. George Fallon one day, after Nellie had been in the room.

"She is far too lovely for an unprotected working girl," the secretary went on to say, "and if it were not for Miss Baker's care of her, I should be uneasy about her, although she has good principles."

Mr. Fallon made no reply, but his brow knit, and for days whenever he saw Nellie he furtively studied her.

"She is beautiful," he murmured—and—fine. I'd stake my life on that."

DEVLERA PLANS COUP

Belfast, Aug. 25.—Eamonn De Valera commander in chief of Republican irregulars has made a dramatic appearance at the head of a little army of rebels in county Louth, according to information received today from the border. At last reports DeValera was reported to be in southwestern Ireland and Louth was said to be free of rebels.

Another report said that DeValera was evidently planning some kind of coup for the week end.

"The trouble lasted about two months. I used other remedies but without success. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some, and after using them two weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Martha Palmer, R. F. D. 2, West Salem, Ohio, Jan. 3, 1922.

Own Your Own Furnace—

—take it along when you move! Looks like a phonograph. Heats 3 to 6 connecting rooms.

Estate Heatrola is the new idea in modern warm-air heating. A practical and efficient warm air furnace, resembling a cabinet phonograph.

Placed in one of the living rooms, it heats 3 to 6 connecting rooms, and heats them better than the ordinary stove heats one. Not a stove, but a furnace that circulates great volumes of warm, moist air throughout the house. Burns any kind of coal satisfactorily.

Grained Mahogany Enamel

The Heatrola is finished in rich, grained mahogany—a vitreous enamel, hard and smooth as glass, and practically everlasting. You can rub and dust it with a cloth, just as you do your furniture.

Come see the Heatrola. Let us explain its many unique features in detail. You have always wanted furnace heat. Now you can have it at small expense. And the Heatrola is as easy as a stove to install.

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE GETTING READY FOR ITS FALL OPENING

With the return to Cedarville of Dr. W. R. McCaskey, president of Cedarville College, preparations for the opening of the College September 12, are expected to move along quickly.

College officials expect as many or more students than attended the Reformed Presbyterian School last year when 125 pursued their studies at the institution. Deputy Probate Judge S. C. Wright, who has been acting as Registrar, has been busy enrolling the students for the coming term and arranging lodging for them.

Until the proposed new girls dormitory is erected, women as well as men students will have to be taken care of in lodging houses in the village. The new dorm has not yet been started nor has the contract been let, although the new science hall which is under course of construction, is rapidly being pushed to completion, is the hope that it may be ready for use before the school year is ended.

The size of the College faculty has been increased by one member this year. Miss Sarah E. Porter, of Edgarton, Mass., making the newly created position of teacher of American literature and rhetoric and as stenographer, in the College office. Other new teachers are Miss Florence Summers, of Republic, Ohio, who will be head of the department of education, and who was for four years principal of Cedarville High School; the Rev. B. E. Robinson, of Greenville, Mich., who will be professor of sociology, and Prof. Frazer who will be professor of science, succeeding Prof. Leroy Allen. A new coach and director of athletics for the College and Cedarville High School will succeed Coach Blackburn as director of recreation this year.

The erection of three new buildings, of which the science hall is one, will mean an enlargement of the college curriculum and an increase in the faculty, when they are completed.

S. & X. TRACTION LINE GRANTED ITS FIRST FRANCHISE BY CITY

For the first time in its history the Xenia and Springfield Traction Company will soon be running its cars over its own right of way into the city of Xenia.

At the special meeting of the city commission held Friday evening the company was granted a franchise from Fairground Avenue to Main St., over Detroit Street. The franchise over that section of the city was granted twenty years ago to the old Rapid Transit line which was later abandoned and the track taken up with the exception of the track from the Fairground road to Main Street over which the D. S. and X. has been operating its cars.

The new franchise granted Friday night is the first that has been given directly to the Springfield Traction Company by the city.

The commission also passed an ordinance Friday night regulating salaries of firemen, which fixes the salary of the chief of the department, at $150 a month.

Styles BY LENORE

About this time of the Summer the linen of gingham frock which has been worn all season and has undergone several tubbings, can usually stand a freshening process with the aid of new collar and cuff accessories. White and ecru are the shades most in demand, the shops report. One of the newer collar and cuff sets is illustrated here. It is an attractive combination of plain and dotted organdy. To throw a gayly colored veil around the brim of the sport hat has been one of the fads of the season. A deep border of wool and silk is new feature of the hexagonal mesh worn by the perky looking lady in the sketch.

The market showed what it could do with a lightning of the restrictive influence exercised by the two strikes last Monday, when sales approached the one million mark. Buying came from all parts of the country. Which apparently is to witness a bull market this early fall, providing the shopmen's strike does not continue long. How far the movement will extend the sagacious prognosticator cannot tell. In its favor are the prevailing ease of money, the crops, and the prospects in industry; against it the foreign situation.

AN AMUSING EPISODE

Chapter 54
"Take a good look at me, Gladys," Nellie said when she came in one afternoon. "Can you see wings sprouting?"

"No, nor feel them either," Gladys passed her hand over Nellie's shoulder.

"Look good!—now do you see any pin feathers?"

"What are you talking about, Nellie Riley?"

"Some men in the subway called me a 'chicken' and then made goo-goo eyes at me, and tried to flirt with me. I wondered if I had wings or pin feathers and so looked simple."

Cora and Gladys laughed, but they soon sobered. Nellie's lovely piquant face, so young and innocent, was always attracting attention. Often, even when with them, men passed remarks about her.

"You'd have thought the subway was a barn yard—like Miss Carter's. One fellow said: 'I bet I catch that chicken' and the other wouldn't bet with him because he said he knew he'd lose. I wish he had—but I had the laugh on them both! They had to leave the car people laughed so."

"What did you do?"

"Nothing much! Just told them if they'd look in the looking glass they'd know that not even a rooster, let alone a chicken would be caught by them. Then the folks all around just howled, and one man said—a nice looking man who had a young girl with him: 'That's right, young lady. Men of that kind are beneath the notice even of a rooster.' Then the two of them got awfully red and squirmed out of their seats and got out the next stop. Oh, it was rich!"

When the girls stopped laughing, Gladys said:

"Whatever we should do without you I don't know. How do you think of such funny things to say and things that make people behave too?"

"Oh, they just come! I don't think at all."

All these little happenings in each other's lives were of intense interest to the girls. Nellie often thought of what Gladys had said: "Girls need someone to talk to, a home of some kind that is their own." This may have been Nellie's salvation, having someone to talk to, someone interested in her. She was irrepressible, and would have been in danger of making undesirable acquaintances had she not known the girls were waiting for her; interested in all she did or that happened to her.

Since the very beginning of her work in the offices of Fallon and Son there had been a slight, yet obvious change in Nellie. She seemed to be trying to act refined in manner and speech. She had gradually left off using much of the slang with which she had punctuated her remarks, and was growing more studious, more anxious to learn.

She also took greater pains with her clothes, and her person. She always had been dainty, now she was immaculate. She rose earlier in the morning that she might have time to attend to her finger nails. When Hilda laughed at her, she said:

"I've got a fine position, I'm not going to disgrace the office by looking sloppy. But to Cora and Gladys she said:

"I've been watching Miss Dorothy Fallon whenever she comes in. Of course I can't have clothes like hers, but I can keep my hands nice and try to look as well as I can."

Nellie often talked of Miss Dorothy and Cora noticed that at such times most of her gaiety disappeared. She invariably connected her name with that of her cousin George Fallon, and would speculate as to whether they cared for each other, would ever get married—unconscious that she was showing to Cora her own interest in her employer, that there was a tinge of sadness in her voice when she spoke of him and his cousin.

If Nellie Riley had been pretty when she left Miss Carter's—a poor half starved little nobody—now at 20, with good clothes and wholesome food she had become really beautiful. Her fine skin, devoid of any makeup, her heavy curling hair, her dainty features, made her one of the prettiest of working girls. "Too pretty," Miss Jones told Mr. George Fallon one day, after Nellie had been in the room.

"She is far too lovely for an unprotested working girl," the secretary went on to say, "and if it were not for Miss Baker's care of her, I should be uneasy about her, although she has good principles."

Mr. Fallon made no reply, but his brow knit, and for days whenever he saw Nellie he furtively studied her. "She is beautiful," he murmured—and—fine, I'd stake my life on that."
